Terwilliger Takes Oath, Assumes Bench

NEW BARRISTER TO CHARGE JURY CALLED MONDAY

Clerk Swears In Common Pleas Judge After Appointment
COMMISSION IS FILED
No Changes Contemplated Among Aides

Meeker Terwilliger, Circleville attorney, assumed the office of judge of Pickaway's Common Pleas court Thursday about 4 p. m.

He was sworn into office by A. L. Wilder, clerk of Common Pleas court, and his commission was filed. His appointment was made by Governor Davey.

Mr. Terwilliger took office immediately after his return from Columbus where he was presented the commission. He attended a dinner at noon at the Columbus Athletic Club. Those present in addition to Mr. Terwilliger were Ferd M. Pickens, representative of Gov. Davey; Lawrence Goeller, chairman of the Pickaway county Democratic executive committee; John C. Goeller, Richard Simkins, and John Ward.

The commission from the governor was presented Mr. Terwilliger by Mr. Pickens.

Henderson Notified
The new judge notified Judge Phil A. Henderson of Logan, who has been serving as a visiting judge during the illness of the late Joseph W. Adkins, that it would be unnecessary for him to return to Circleville Monday.

The first major duty of the new judge will be to charge the county grand jury when it begins its session Monday with between 25 and 30 cases for consideration.

Judge Terwilliger said no changes will be made in the Common Pleas court personnel. Robert Adkins, court bailiff and deputy sheriff, and Miss Helen Rowe, court stenographer, will continue in their positions.

GEORGE R. CURL, 87, DIES; RITES MONDAY

Oldest Past Exalted Ruler Of B. P. O. Elks Lodge Had Been Seriously Ill Two Weeks; Six Children Survive

George Richard "Dick" Curl, 87, who was the oldest living past exalted ruler of the Circleville lodge B. P. O. Elks, died at 12:10 p. m. Friday at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Percy May, Wayne township.

Mr. Curl had been seriously ill for the last two weeks. Death was due to complications. He was born March 19, 1851 in Xenia, the son of James W. and Martha Parcell Curl. Mr. Curl had been a resident of Pickaway county since boyhood. He was a retired grain dealer.

Surviving are six children, Mrs. May, James G. Curl and Mrs. Albert H. Schory, Columbus, Mrs. E. Marion Lutz, and Miss Marjorie Curl of Indianapolis, and Edward P. Curl, Washington D. C. and a sister, Mrs. Charles Crane.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 9 a. m. in St. Joseph's church with the Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman officiating. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery in charge of the Mader Funeral Service.

The body will remain at the Mader funeral home until time for services.

BLAST WRECKS ENGINE; 5 DIE

Montana Scene Of Third Rail Disaster In Three Weeks

MISSOULA, Mont., July 8—(UP)—A giant Northern Pacific freight train locomotive exploded in Hell Gate canyon 27 miles East of here early today, killing five men and injuring 15 others. It was Montana's third train disaster in three weeks.

The blast flattened trees for 300 yards on either side of the track, hurled heavy steel plates over the train and onto a highway 100 yards distant and demolished 10 cars. The wreckage of the engine, one of the largest freight types built, was blown into the Clark Fork river.

The blast occurred just after the train had left one tunnel and approximately three minutes before it was due to head into another. Had the explosion occurred inside either one of the tunnels many more would have been killed or injured, railway officials said.

The 100 or more transients riding the train were shaken off like flies or banged and rolled around inside box cars and reefers. Many of them, although bruised and shaken, aided in rescue work.

The dead: Ernest Weston, engineer. Elva Dunlap, fireman. Ernest Beddison, brakeman. A 15-year-old transient whose personal effects indicated that his home was in Norfolk, Neb.

An unidentified transient. Two other wrecks occurred recently on the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. More than 45 persons were killed in one at Custer Creek, and a youth was killed in a second near Roundup.

177 Children Examined In County-Wide Clinic

One hundred and seventy-seven children were given health examinations Wednesday and Thursday in the clinic conducted for those being given grants from national, state and county aid to dependent children funds.

The clinic, held in the county health department, was asked by the Bureau of Aid to Dependent Children, Division of Public Assistance and State Department of Welfare.

In the total examined 92 were found underweight and 14 overweight. Poor nutrition was found in 72 cases. One hundred and thirteen were immunized against smallpox and 53 against diphtheria. Blood tests were given 56.

The clinic results showed seven children with eye ailments, 49 with poor vision, 18 with ear troubles, 108 with bad teeth, three with nose ailments, 45 cases of bad tonsils, one case of adenoids, four with defective speech, one case of chronic appendicitis, five cases of hernia, four orthopedic cases and two youngsters with nervous disorders.

Dentists who took part in the clinic were Drs. Robert Lilly, O. J. Towers and G. D. Phillips. Physicians were Drs. V. D. Kerns, D. V. Courtwright, E. S. Shane, B. R. Bales, E. L. Montgomery, Lloyd Jones, George W. Heffner, H. D. Jackson and A. D. Blackburn, Circleville; L. C. Schiff, G. R. Gardner and R. S. Hosler, Ashville; and Dr. Kahler, New Holland. Nurses were Miss Margaret Hunsicker, Mrs. Mae M. Groome, and Misses Tallman and Le Fevre, of Columbus. Clerks were Mrs. Harriet Wallace, Mrs. Harriet Hennessy and Miss Hazel Lannan.

Miss Virginia Smith, Williamsport, is county supervisor for the division of aid for the aged.

PLANE CRASHES KILLING WOMAN, HURTING OTHERS

Two Taken To Hospital As Northwest Liner Falls To Ground

SEVEN ARE UNINJURED

Big Transport Wrecked At Montana Airport

BILLINGS, Mont., July 8—(UP)—A woman passenger was killed and two other passengers were injured early today when an eastbound Northwest airlines transport plane crashed three minutes after taking off from the Billings airport.

The dead woman was Mrs. N. S. Mackie, Evanston, Ill. She died an hour and a half after the crash of a head injury suffered when thrown clear of the plane and onto a rock.

The injured were N. S. Mackie, husband of the dead woman, dislocated shoulder, bruises and shock.

Mrs. W. J. Timdale, Slocum, British Columbia, minor head injury and bruises.

Seven Others Uninjured

Pilot Walt Bullock and Co-pilot L. S. Doan and five other passengers on the plane, P. S. Bristol, Wallace, Idaho; C. V. Gary, Chicago; W. C. Bellenger, Bremerton, Wash.; A. L. Neimeyer, representative of the department of commerce, Seattle Wash.; and G. B. Tussum, Billings, were not injured.

The plane, one of the line's new twin-motored Lockheed "zephyrs," took off from the airport at 12:35 a. m. It gained an altitude of 1,000 feet and headed Northeast into the wind. Then it plunged to earth.

The craft seemed to stall momentarily in mid-air then started spiraling down. With a tremendous crash it landed on its tail. The impact demolished the plane.

Pilot Bullock said he could offer no explanation for the crash. "I don't know how it happened," he was quoted as saying.

A. R. Mensinger, division traffic controller, said the plane was on a routine flight.

MART DECLINES SLIGHTLY AFTER GOOD RECOVERY

NEW YORK, July 8—(UP)—Stocks declined one to three points today in moderately active turnover. Toward noon the list steadied and some of the leaders came back fractionally.

Market experts regarded the recession as a natural one after a prolonged rise. Most of the selling was profit-taking although a few traders put out short lines anticipating a further setback before the market turned up again. None believed the recovery was ended.

Widest declines were in the higher priced shares which recently had made broad recoveries. Dow Chemical lost three points to 133 on a single transaction. Johns-Manville was down 3 1/2 to 89 1/2.

U. S. Steel touched 57 off 2 1/2 before meeting support. Chrysler at its low of 64 1/2 was off 2 1/2. Declines of two points or more were noted in Allied Chemical, American Smelting, Columbian Carbon, U. S. Rubber Preferred, U. S. Smelting and Caterpillar tractor.

GARDEN CROPS STOLEN

All of James Swearingen's tomatoes and potatoes, grown on ground in the rear of his rooming house, 141 W. Main street, were stolen this week while Mr. Swearingen was visiting in Jackson.

Michigan Hangs Killer; Death First Since 1830

MILAN, Mich., July 8—(UP)—Tony Chebatoris died on the gallows at Milan prison farm just at dawn today, the first prisoner to be executed in Michigan in 108 years.

The small, arrogant Hamtramck Pole who had spent more than half of his 38 years behind bars was executed for the murder of an innocent bystander during a bank raid at Midland, Mich., last September.

Chebatoris, who in his cell last Fall desecrated Holy pictures on the wall and snarled at Nuns who came to give him spiritual solace, mounted the gallows between two guards. The trap was sprung at 5:08 a. m. At 5:21 Chebatoris was dead, the first prisoner executed in the state since 1830 when Stephen Simmons was hanged publicly in Detroit for murder.

Murphy Loses Appeal

The execution drew nationwide attention because of Gov. Frank Murphy's 11th hour appeal to President Roosevelt to preserve Michigan's tradition and remove the hanging to another state. Judge Arthur Tuttle, who sentenced Chebatoris, blocked the last avenue of hope to transfer the site when he ruled yesterday that the execution must be carried out according to the sentence—in Michigan.

The execution was the first in the nation under the death clause of the National Bank Robbery act.

The gallows on which Chebatoris died was erected in a corner of one wing of the main prison farm building. It was sheltered by an improvised shed to conceal it from the view of other prisoners.

The crime for which Chebatoris was hanged occurred last Sept. 29 at Midland, Mich. With a prison acquaintance, Jack Gracey, the Hamtramck hoodlum decided on a career of bank robbery and chose the Chemical State Savings bank at Midland for a start.

They marched into the bank shortly before noon and encountered President C. H. Macomber, 68, inside the door. When Macomber saw their guns, he leaped on Gracey and struggled. Chebatoris fired a shot at Cashier Paul Bywater as he came to Macomber's assistance. Then Gracey's gun barked, a bullet striking the bank president. Macomber and Bywater both died.

BREAK POSSIBLE IN HEAT WAVE GRASPING OHIO

Temporary break in the heat wave that grips Ohio was predicted for late Friday. Showers were on the weather prediction of the state bureau. Somewhat cooler weather was predicted for Saturday but it was not expected to break the heat wave.

At 1 p. m. Friday the temperature in Circleville was 90 degrees. Highest official recording Thursday was 92. High humidity Friday made the temperature more oppressive. During the night the lowest temperature was 74.

ATTORNEY FOR KILLER TRYING ANOTHER PLEA

JASPER, Fla., July 8—(UP)—A new effort to save Franklin Pierce McCall, 21-year-old kidnaper of little Jimmy Cash, from death in the electric chair, was planned today by C. A. Avriett, attorney for McCall's family.

Avriett, rejected yesterday in a plea to the state pardon board for commutation of McCall's sentence to life imprisonment, announced after conferring with the abductor's family that he would appeal to the state supreme court.

He indicated he would base his arguments chiefly on the fact that McCall did not have a jury trial.

Denial by the pardon board of Avriett's request for a commutation cleared the way for Gov. Fred P. Cone to sign a death warrant, fixing the week for McCall's execution. Cone sent records in the McCall case to Attorney General George Couper Gibbs for a final legal check. He said he did not know when he would sign a warrant.

PRESIDENT AIDS BULKLEY WITH MAJOR ADDRESS

Throng At Big Celebration Listens To New Deal's Program Applauded

ON WAY TO PACIFIC

Executive Speaks Later in Kentucky

MARIETTA, July 8—(UP)—President Roosevelt, in the first address of his politically significant trip to the Pacific coast, gave inferential approval today of Sen. Robert J. Bulkley, D. O., an ardent New Dealer who seeks reelection this Fall.

Speaking at an historical celebration commemorating the establishment of the Northwest Territory in 1788, Mr. Roosevelt said that he believed the American people were not afraid of their capacity "to choose forward-looking representatives to run their government."

His address was devoted chiefly to a discussion of the "human parallel" of the migration to the West in the 18th century and today's "mental migration . . . to create new conditions — of security."

Continuing that parallel, after referring to New Deal laws which protect savings accounts and homes, he said that the cavalry captain who protected the log cabins of the Northwest Territory "is now supplanted by legislators, like Senator Bulkley, toiling over the drafting of such statutes and over the efficiency of government machinery to administer them so that such protection and help of government can be extended to the full."

This was the President's only reference to Bulkley who faces a difficult primary race on Aug. 9 against former Gov. George White. But it was expected that this statement would be interpreted as full administration endorsement of Ohio's senior senator as one of the liberal candidates on whose side the President has announced he would align himself as head of the Democratic party.

Former Governor White, as chairman of the federal commission celebrating the Northwest Territory anniversary, introduced the President to the crowd gathered in Muskingum park for unveiling.

DAVEY ATTACKS LEADER OF C. I. O. BEFORE MINERS

ATHENS, July 8—(UP)—Governor Martin L. Davey predicted he will win nomination by vote two or three to one, and Fall election by largest majority in Ohio history in an address here last night.

Although in a mining county, that has more than 5000 C. I. O. members, Davey continued his attack against John L. Lewis. Charging that mine union president plotted "civil war and rebellion at Youngstown. Hundreds upon hundreds of workmen would have been slaughtered by each other—had not troops been sent," he said.

Davey reviewed the administration of relief for which he said 65 million has been provided in the last three years without any extra taxes.

The governor said "very possibly" "Hot-Mix" contractors "did get together on prices, but that price fixing is exactly what Uncle Sam told businessmen to do under N.R.A. and is same principal as incorporated into Guffey coal bill."

MINISTER INVITED

The Rev. Walter Peters, pastor of the Ashville and Hedges Chapel Methodist congregations, has been asked to return as pastor for the next conference year. The request was made at the recent quarterly conference.

SALES TAX DROP CUTS TREASURY

Treasurer Says Receipts So Far This Year Down $8,742,901.09

COLUMBUS, July 8—(UP)—State Treasurer H. Knisley today released a report that showed receipts in the state treasury for the first six months of 1938 were $8,742,901.09 less than for a corresponding period a year ago.

The treasurer's comparative statement showed collections for the first six months of 1937 were $125,804,683.03 as against $117,061,781.94 for the same period this year.

The greatest drop was the loss in revenue from the sales tax. Knisley said collections for the first half of 1937 totaled $24,755,213.83 and for the same period this year $18,586,646.22, a loss of $6,168,567.61.

Other funds also showed declines, but Knisley said the wide difference "probably would be reduced" by collections within the next 30 days.

Funds showing a decline included: Federal contributions for aid to the aged, $8,410,857 to $7,012,291; Wine tax, from $311,524 to $305,767; barrel beer tax, from $975,664 to $745,686; liquor control rotary fund, from $26,059,325 to $23,295,716; and liquor gallonage tax, from $4,091,718 to $3,578,298.

Funds which showed increases included: Receipts from domestic corporations; undivided intangible taxes; insurance taxes; the use tax; and liquor license fees.

TAX COMMISSION FAVORS MONROE SCHOOL ADDITION

Ohio Tax Commission Friday had approved submission of a bond issue to voters of Monroe township at the Aug. 9 primary for an addition to the school building.

Cost of a new addition to a gymnasium, auditorium, study hall, science laboratory and four classrooms is estimated at $60,000. The Public Works Administration has been asked to grant $27,000. The board of education has a $3,000 balance to apply toward the building and a $30,000 bond issue will be submitted to voters.

The school has been crowded and construction of an addition has been under consideration for some time.

"Not the Man!"

INTERVIEWED in Wales, where he had gone from London, Prince Frederick of Prussia, 26, grandson of former Kaiser Wilhelm, denied he was the man whom Count Court von Haugwitz-Reventlow allegedly wanted to "shoot like a dog". The prince, employed by a London bank, told the interviewer that he had met Count Court and Countess Barbara merely a few times, and that both were very kind to him. According to rumors in London, Countess Barbara, greatly attracted by titles and topmost social personages, had smiled on the prince, but he had responded merely with ordinary courtesies. Following the prince's frank denial, London again took up the search for the "mystery man" spoken of but not named in the court battle between Countess Barbara and the count.

MADMAN KILLED AFTER STABBING POLICE OFFICER

CLEVELAND, July 8—(UP)—Police shot and killed an escaped madman today after he had stabbed and critically wounded a patrolman with a meat knife.

The maniac was Matthew Bubich, 48. Officers blinded him with tear gas and shot him three times in his former butcher shop after he had thrust an 11-inch knife into the stomach of Patrolman Robert Wehagen.

Bubich died in a hospital a few minutes after arrival. Police Surgeon Dr. George P. O'Malley operated on the critically-wounded patrolman.

The insane man, a state ward in a private sanitarium, had escaped at 3 a. m. by removing a screen from a second-floor window and climbing down the fire escape in his pajamas.

Police were puzzled as to how Bubich reached the butcher shop, some distance from the sanitarium but assumed that he had walked. There, he beat on the door with a limb four feet long and three inches thick.

He roused his wife, Anna, and 15-year-old daughter, Mary, who live in rear. He kissed them and his wife brought clothes. She said he became angered when she could not find his belt.

"He went into the shop and came back with the butcher knife and locked the door. He told us to keep still or he'd kill us. Then he changed his mind and told us to clear out."

"Mary and I went out, taking my little boy with us."

CUTS TREASURY

Treasurer Says Receipts So Far This Year Down $8,742,901.09

COLUMBUS, July 8—(UP)—State Treasurer H. Knisley today released a report that showed receipts in the state treasury for the first six months of 1938 were $8,742,901.09 less than for a corresponding period a year ago.

The treasurer's comparative statement showed collections for the first six months of 1937 were $125,804,683.03 as against $117,061,781.94 for the same period this year.

The greatest drop was the loss in revenue from the sales tax. Knisley said collections for the first half of 1937 totaled $24,755,213.83 and for the same period this year $18,586,646.22, a loss of $6,168,567.61.

Other funds also showed declines, but Knisley said the wide difference "probably would be reduced" by collections within the next 30 days.

Funds showing a decline included: Federal contributions for aid to the aged, $8,410,857 to $7,012,291; Wine tax, from $311,524 to $305,767; barrel beer tax, from $975,664 to $745,686; liquor control rotary fund, from $26,059,325 to $23,295,716; and liquor gallonage tax, from $4,091,715 to $3,578,298.

Funds which showed increases included: Receipts from domestic corporations; undivided intangible taxes; insurance taxes; the use tax; and liquor license fees.

A new effort to save Franklin Pierce McCall, 21-year-old kidnaper of little Jimmy Cash, from death in the electric chair, was planned today by C. A. Avriett, attorney for McCall's family.

Avriett, rejected yesterday in a plea to the state pardon board for commutation of McCall's sentence to life imprisonment, announced after conferring with the abductor's family that he would appeal to the state supreme court.

He indicated he would base his arguments chiefly on the fact that McCall did not have a jury trial.

Denial by the pardon board of Avriett's request for a commutation cleared the way for Gov. Fred P. Cone to sign a death warrant, fixing the week for McCall's execution. Cone sent records in the McCall case to Attorney General George Couper Gibbs for a final legal check. He said he did not know when he would sign a warrant.

ATTORNEY FOR KILLER TRYING ANOTHER PLEA

ON WAY TO PACIFIC

Executive Speaks Later In Kentucky

MARIETTA, July 8—(UP)—President Roosevelt, in the first address of his politically significant trip to the Pacific coast, gave inferential approval today of Sen. Robert J. Bulkley, D. O., an ardent New Dealer who seeks reelection this fall.

Speaking at a historical celebration commemorating the establishment of the Northwest Territory in 1788, Mr. Roosevelt said that he believed the American people were not afraid of their capacity "to choose forward-looking representatives to run their government."

His address was devoted chiefly to a discussion of the "human parallel" of the migration to the West in the 18th century and today's "mental migration . . . to create new conditions — of security."

Continuing that parallel, after referring to New Deal laws which protect savings accounts and homes, he said that the cavalry captain who protected the log cabins of the Northwest Territory "is now supplanted by legislators, like Senator Bulkley, toiling over the drafting of such statutes and over the efficiency of government machinery to administer them so that such protection and help of government can be extended to the full."

This was the President's only reference to Bulkley who faces a difficult primary race on Aug. 9 against former Gov. George White. But it was expected that this statement would be interpreted as full administration endorsement of Ohio's senior senator as one of the liberal candidates on whose side the President has announced he would align himself as head of the Democratic party.

DAVEY ATTACKS LEADER OF C. I. O. BEFORE MINERS

ATHENS, July 8—(UP)—Governor Martin L. Davey predicted he will win nomination by vote two or three to one, and Fall election by largest majority in Ohio history in an address here last night.

Although in a mining county, that has more than 5000 C. I. O. members, Davey continued his attack against John L. Lewis. Charging that mine union president plotted "civil war and rebellion at Youngstown. Hundreds upon hundreds of workmen would have been slaughtered by each other—had not troops been sent," he said.

Davey reviewed the administration of relief for which he said 65 million has been provided in the last three years without any extra taxes.

The governor said "very possibly" "Hot-Mix" contractors "did get together on prices, but that price fixing is exactly what Uncle Sam told businessmen to do under N.R.A. and is same principal as incorporated into Guffey coal bill."

TAX COMMISSION FAVORS MONROE SCHOOL ADDITION

Ohio Tax Commission Friday had approved submission of a bond issue to voters of Monroe township at the Aug. 9 primary for an addition to the school building.

Cost of a new addition to a gymnasium, auditorium, study hall, science laboratory and four classrooms is estimated at $60,000. The Public Works Administration has been asked to grant $27,000. The board of education has a $3,000 balance to apply toward the building and a $30,000 bond issue will be submitted to voters.

The school has been crowded and construction of an addition has been under consideration for some time.

MINISTER INVITED

The Rev. Walter Peters, pastor of the Ashville and Hedges Chapel Methodist congregations, has been asked to return as pastor for the next conference year. The request was made at the recent quarterly conference.

In Kentucky Later

Later today the President is expected to reveal exactly how far, politically, he intends to go in addresses on this trip when he speaks in Kentucky, the home state of his senate majority leader, Alben W. Barkley, who is opposed in the primary by Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

In his address here the President appealed to the people to remember that "the ultimate rulers of our democracy are not a President and senators and congressmen and government officials but the voters of this country."

"Let us not be afraid to help each other—let us never forget that government is ourselves and not an alien power over us," he said.

"I believe that the American people, not afraid of their own capacity to choose forward-looking representatives to run their government, want the same cooperative security and have the same courage to achieve it, in 1938 as 1788. I am sure they know that we will always have a frontier—of social problems—and that we must always move in to bring law and order to it."

He praised the men and women who established Marietta 150 years ago, and recalled that right behind them "moved that instrument of law and order and cooperation—government." Describing some of the aims of that early settlement here he said that they paralleled those of today.

"Every generation meets substantially the same problems under its one different set of circumstances," he said. "Anyone speculating on our great migration westward is struck with the human parallel between the driving force behind that migration and the driving force behind the great social exploration we are carrying on today."

"The standard of life in a log cabin," was not high, but it was certain. A family or at most a township, could be a whole self-sufficing economic system."

"Under such conditions there was so much to get done which men could not get done alone, that the frontiersmen naturally reached out to government—as their greatest single instrument of cooperative self-help with the aid of which they could get things done."

Government Is Power

"They looked on government not as a thing apart—as a power over our people. They regarded it as a power of the people, as a democratic expression of organized self-help like a frontier husking bee."

Today, he continued, the whole nation "is on a mental migration, dissatisfied with old conditions, seeking like the little band that came to Marietta to create new conditions—of security."

From Marietta, the President continues to Covington, Ky., where, this afternoon, he will make another major speech. His appearance there is expected to develop another open endorsement of Barkley.

The Roosevelt schedule calls for rear platform appearances during the day at Louisville at 6 p. m. and at Bowling Green at 6:50. And it was assumed that Barkley's candidacy would benefit from both.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Attorney General Homer Cummings, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, saw the President off from Washington last night.

There were 27 newspaper correspondents on the train, about 20 more than usually accompany Mr. Roosevelt on his journeys. Among them was Harry Bingham, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, son of the late ambassador to Great Britain.

The President's immediate party consisted of D. Basil O'Connor, his former law partner; Lawrence Wood Robert, secretary of the Democratic national committee; Charles West, former under secretary of the interior, who recently ran afoul of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes; Keith Morgan, in charge of raising funds for the foundation for war against infantile paralysis; Secretaries Stephen T. Early and Marvin H. McIntyre; Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician; Col. E. N. Watson, military aide, and Miss Marguerite Le Hand, personal secretary.

From Kentucky, the presidential special will head for Oklahoma, arriving in Oklahoma City at 5 p. m. Saturday. The President will motor to the fair grounds there to deliver the third of his major speeches.

24 LONG-RANGE BOMBERS LEAVE FOR ALASKAN DUTY

SEATTLE, July 8—(UP)—Twenty-four of the U. S. navy's newest long-range bombers set out for new air bases in Alaska today to begin the greatest aerial maneuvers ever undertaken in the far North.

The twin-motored planes composed the largest mass flight ever made to Alaska. They were separated into two squadrons, VP-11 and VP-12. VP-11 will go to Kodiak and VP-12 to Sitka.

Twenty-three other ships will follow tomorrow morning.

into the presidential car shortly after it arrived here. On the ride to the park, he was seated by the president—between the president and former Governor White.

Charles Sawyer, candidate for governor, was warmly greeted by the President at the railway station. He accepted the invitation to accompany the presidential party to Cincinnati.

Gov. Davey was on the speakers' platform at the park when the President arrived. Both applause and booing greeted the governor's arrival. He smiled to the crowd. Mr. Roosevelt shook hands with the governor and exchanged a few words with him when he arrived.

Aides of the governor said he did not go to the railroad station because his automobile was blocked at a railroad crossing and he decided to go straight to the park.

Other Ohio dignitaries here today included State Democratic Chairman Francis Poulsen; Democratic National Committeewoman Mildred Jaster; Congressmen Mosier, Imhoff and Jenkins; U. S. Marshall Kenneth Kerr.

More than 60 persons were given first aid treatment by Red Cross nurses because of the heat.

France to Welcome Britain's King and Queen

THE state visit which King George and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain will make to Paris has been postponed until July 19, due to the death of the queen's mother. The Paris visit will be concluded July 22 when the royal couple will go to dedicate an Australian monument at Villers Bretonneux. President Albert Lebrun will act as host in the name of the French Republic. There will be military displays, chiefly around the Arc de Triomphe, to signify the close alliance of Britain and France. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor departed from Paris some weeks ago for a newly-leased villa on the Riviera, thus avoiding embarrassment when the king arrives.

Count, Family Split Over Court Fight With 'Babs'

LONDON, July 8.—(UP)—Dissension has arisen in the family of Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow as the result of his marital dispute with Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, it was reported today.

As the result of the public airing of the Count's differences with his wife, it was said, he is no longer on speaking terms with his elder brother, Count Henry.

Henry is heir to the Haugwitz-Reventlow family property, including the ancestral castle in Denmark. Quarters close to the family said Henry was extremely angry, and extremely embarrassed, over the publicity which has resulted over the Countess's complaint that Court used threats against her.

The brothers have had differences on three occasions since Court's marriage to the $40,000,000 Woolworth five and ten cent store heiress, informants said.

Now, they reported, there has been no communication between them since Court was made a defendant on the threats charge.

The brothers, when in London, used to reside together at the Dorchester hotel. Henry was at the Dorchester when Court came to London to answer, at Bow street police station, the threats charge against him. Instead of going to the Dorchester, however, Court went to the Ritz.

As people who know the Haugwitz-Reventlow saw it, Court was more or less alone in his present troubles, estranged not only from the Countess but from his brother, the head of the Haugwitz-Reventlow family.

The next hearing of the threats charge, at Bow street court next Wednesday, was awaited with great interest. It was expected that Court would take the witness stand to answer the charge against him. He has had no chance so far to speak in his defense, but it was understood that his case was a denial that he acted improperly in any way.

JURY TO PROBE PENNSYLVANIA'S ADMINISTRATION

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 8—(UP)—Judge Paul N. Schaeffer said today he would convene a county grand jury to investigate charges of bribery and corruption in Governor George H. Earle's administration.

The Democratic jurist had been assigned by the state supreme court to determine whether an inquiry should be conducted after three Republican judges asked to be relieved of the responsibility.

Judge Schaeffer said to newspapermen: "Gentlemen, there will be a grand jury investigation. There will be a session of court Monday at 11 o'clock."

GOOD WORKERS RECEIVE JAIL'S BEST DINNERS

CAMDEN, N. J. (UP)—Atop the Camden county courthouse is an ultra-modern "skyscraper" jail used principally for untried prisoners and others unable to furnish bail.

Warden George Roundey has saved the county about $10,000 through his system of dual menus. Though no inmate is required to work, those who do are given more palatable meals.

Roundey is an advocate of an "installment plan" for paying fines.

"Take the case of a man who is fined $25 or $50 for something that perhaps could not be made out as a clear-cut case of negligence," he said. "Why send him to jail in disgrace when, under a more moderate law, he could pay his fine at the rate of $1 a week, just as he does when he could pay his fine and go, while the poor man has to stay in jail until the law considers him purged of his offense."

SEADLUND TO DIE JULY 14, CHICAGO JUDGE DECIDES

CHICAGO, July 8.—(UP)—Federal Judge John P. Barnes today ordered that John Seadlund die in the electric chair July 14 for the kidnap-slaying of Charles Ross, wealthy retired manufacturer of greeting cards and valentines.

U. S. Marshal William E. McDonnell said the execution would be carried out at 1 a. m.

Seadlund, who has expressed a desire to "get it over with," appeared in court handcuffed to two deputy marshals. His attorneys have indicated he will make no further effort to escape the death sentence.

WAGE-HOUR JOB IS OFFERED TO EX-N. R. A. AIDE

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(UP)—President Roosevelt has offered the post of wage-hour administrator to Donald M. Nelson, Sears, Roebuck & Co., vice president and former N.R.A. official, it was reliably learned today.

Nelson is said to have told Mr. Roosevelt that he could not accept the job on a permanent basis because of his business connections. It was understood that this condition caused last minute reconsideration of the appointment and led the President to delay announcement of the appointment until after he left Washington.

Whether Nelson ultimately will take the job on a temporary basis was not learned.

Nelson would neither confirm nor deny that he had been offered the post when he was reached in Chicago today.

In Kentucky Later Later today the President is expected to reveal exactly how far, politically, he intends to go in addresses on this trip when he speaks in Kentucky, the home state of his senate majority leader, Alben W. Barkley, who is opposed in the primary by Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

In his address here the President appealed to the people to remember that "the ultimate rulers of our democracy are not a President and senators and congressmen and government officials but the voters of this country."

"Let us not be afraid to help each other—let us never forget that government is ourselves and not an alien power over us," he said.

"I believe that the American people, not afraid of their own capacity to choose forward-looking representatives to run their government, want the same co-operative security and have the same courage to achieve it, in 1938 as 1788. I am sure they know that we will always have a frontier—of social problems—and that we must always move in to bring law and order to it."

He praised the men and women who established Marietta 150 years ago, and recalled that right behind them "moved that instrument of law and order and cooperation—government." Describing some of the aims of that early settlement here he said that they paralleled those of today.

"Every generation meets substantially the same problems under its one different set of circumstances," he said. "Anyone speculating on our great migration westward is struck with the human parallel between the driving force behind that migration and the driving force behind the great social exploration we are carrying on today."

"The standard of life in a log cabin . . . was not high, but it was certain. A family or at most a township, could be a whole self-sufficing economic system . . . Under such conditions there was so much to get done which men could not get done alone, that the frontiersmen naturally reached out to government—as their greatest single instrument of co-operative self-help with the aid of which they could get things done."

Government Is Power "They looked on government not as a thing apart—as a power over us people. They regarded it as a power of the people, as a democratic expression of organized self-help like a frontier husking bee." Today, he continued, the whole nation "is on a mental migration, dissatisfied with old conditions, seeking like the little band that came to Marietta to create new conditions—of security."

From Marietta, the President continues to Covington, Ky., where, this afternoon, he will make another major speech. His appearance there is expected to develop another open endorsement of Barkley.

The Roosevelt schedule calls for rear platform appearances during the day at Louisville at 6 p. m. and at Bowling Green at 6:50. And it was assumed that Barkley's candidacy would benefit from both.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Attorney General Homer Cummings, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, saw the President off from Washington last night.

There were 27 newspaper correspondents on the train, about 20 more than usually accompany Mr. Roosevelt on his journeys. Among them was Harry Bingham, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, son of the late ambassador to Great Britain.

The President's immediate party consisted of D. Basil O'Connor, his former law partner; Lawrence Wood Robert, secretary of the Democratic national committee; Charles West, former under secretary of the interior, who recently ran afoul of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes; Keith Morgan, in charge of raising funds for the foundation for war against infantile paralysis; Secretaries Stephen T. Early and Marvin H. McIntyre; Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician; Col. E. N. Watson, military aide; and Miss Marguerite Le Hand, personal secretary.

From Kentucky, the presidential special will head for Oklahoma, arriving in Oklahoma City at 5 p. m. Saturday. The President will motor to the fair grounds there to deliver the third of his major speeches.

24 LONG-RANGE BOMBERS LEAVE FOR ALASKAN DUTY

SEATTLE, July 8—(UP)—Twenty-four of the U. S. navy's newest long-range bombers set out for new air bases in Alaska today to begin the greatest aerial maneuvers ever undertaken in the far North.

The twin-motored planes composed the largest mass flight ever made to Alaska. They were separated into two squadrons, VP-11 and VP-12. VP-11 will go to Kodiak and VP-12 to Sitka.

Twenty-three other ships will follow tomorrow morning.

into the presidential car shortly after it arrived here. On the ride to the park, he was seated by the president—between the president and former Governor White.

Charles Sawyer, candidate for governor, was warmly greeted by the President at the railway station. He accepted the invitation to accompany the presidential party to Cincinnati.

Gov. Davey was on the speakers' platform at the park when the President arrived. Both applause and booing greeted the governor's arrival. He smiled to the crowd.

Mr. Roosevelt shook hands with the governor and exchanged a few words with him when he arrived. Aides of the governor said he did not go to the railroad station because his automobile was blocked at a railroad crossing and he decided to go straight to the park.

Other Ohio dignitaries here today included State Democratic Chairman Francis Poulson; Democratic National Committeewoman Mildred Jaster; Congressmen Mosier, Imhoff and Jenkins; U. S. Marshall Kenneth Kerr.

More than 60 persons were given first aid treatment by Red Cross nurses because of the heat.

France to Welcome Britain's King and Queen

THE state visit which King George and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain will make to Paris has been postponed until July 19, due to the death of the queen's mother. The Paris visit will be concluded July 22 when the royal couple will go to dedicate an Australian monument at Villers Bretonneux. President Albert Lebrun will act as host in the name of the French Republic. There will be military displays, chiefly around the Arc de Triomphe, to signify the close alliance of Britain and France. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor departed from Paris some weeks ago for a newly-leased villa on the Riviera, thus avoiding embarrassment when the king arrives.

Count, Family Split Over Court Fight With 'Babs'

LONDON, July 8.—(UP)—Dissension has arisen in the family of Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow as the result of his marital dispute with Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, it was reported today.

As the result of the public airing of the Count's differences with his wife, it was said, he is no longer on speaking terms with his elder brother, Count Henry.

Henry is heir to the Haugwitz-Reventlow family property, including the ancestral castle in Denmark. Quarters close to the family said Henry was extremely angry, and extremely embarrassed, over the publicity which has resulted over the Countess's complaint that Court used threats against her. The brothers have had differences on three occasions since Court's marriage to the $400,000-000 Woolworth five and ten cent store heiress, informants said.

Now, they reported, there has been no communication between them since Court was made a defendant on the threats charge.

The brothers, when in London, used to reside together at the Dorchester hotel. Henry was at the Dorchester when Court came to London to answer, at Bow street police station, the threats charge against him. Instead of going to the Dorchester, however, Court went to the Ritz.

As people who know the Haugwitz-Reventlow saw it, Court was more or less alone in his present troubles, estranged not only from the Countess but from his brother, the head of the Haugwitz-Reventlow family.

The next hearing of the threats charge, at Bow street court next Wednesday, was awaited with great interest. It was expected that Court would take the witness stand to answer the charge against him. He has had no chance so far to speak in his defense, but it was understood that his case was a denial that he acted improperly in any way.

Warden George Roundey has saved the county about $10,000 through his system of dual menus. Though no inmate is required to work, those who do are given more palatable meals.

Roundey is an advocate of an "installment plan" for paying fines. "Take the case of a man who is fined $25 or $50 for something that perhaps could not be made out as a clear-cut case of negligence," he said. "Why send him to jail in disgrace when, under a more moderate law, he could pay his fine at the rate of $1 a week, just as he does when he makes a purchase. It seems a shame that one man with plenty of money can pay his fine and go, while the poor man has to stay in jail until the law considers him purged of his offense."

The commotion attracted the attention of Dr. Frank L. Hardy, a dentist whose office was above the bank. Hardy fired his deer rifle at the fleeing car. His first shot struck Chebatoris, the driver, and forced the car into an iron fence.

Partner Killed The gunmen then began firing a war-like fusillade of shots. One of them mortally wounded Henry L. Porter, a Bay City, Mich., truck driver, who apparently was mistaken for a policeman because of his uniform. The sharp-shooting dentist's gun barked again and Gracey fell dead. Chebatoris surrendered.

MADMAN KILLED AFTER STABBING POLICE OFFICER

(Continued from Page One) patrolmen came, and begged him to open the door. They attempted to force it, unavailingly. They called for reinforcements and three more police came.

Mrs. Bubich, meanwhile, gave Patrolman Wehagen a key and he opened the door. The madman pushed it shut. Wehagen tried again and the door opened.

Wehagen stepped in cautiously. Bubich, from behind the door, slashed down with the knife. As he fell, the patrolman discharged a tear-gas shell. Fellow officers closed in and began firing shots and discharging tear gas to protect themselves. The third felled Bubich.

DIVORCE SUITS AND CRIMINAL CASES INCREASE

Clerk's Report Discloses Year's Activity In Pickaway County

JUDGMENTS GO LOWER

72 Sentences Imposed For Various Crimes

Divorce actions and criminal cases filed in Common Pleas court during the year ending June 30 showed an increase over the previous year while money judgments decreased.

This information is revealed in the annual report of A. L. Wilder, clerk of Common Pleas court, compiled for the secretary of state.

Eighty divorce cases were brought during the last year while 13 were pending on July 1, 1937. Only 48 were listed in the 1937 report, 64 in the 1936 report. In the eighty cases brought during the last year seven were for willful absence, one for infidelity, 12 for extreme cruelty, 57 for gross neglect, one for drunkenness and two were miscellaneous charges. Five charging cruelty and eight charging neglect were pending.

53 Cases Decided

The court decided 53 cases during the year, granting three divorces for willful absence, seven for cruelty, 41 for gross neglect and two on miscellaneous charges. Those pending include four for neglect and one for drunkenness.

Husbands filed 28 suits, wives 65. Thirty-five divorces were granted wives, 18 to husbands.

Ninety-two criminal cases were before the court during the year. Seventy-two sentences were imposed, 24 persons being sent to reformatories or the penitentiary, 17 to the county jail, 16 given fines and costs, and 15 were placed on probation.

The cases included two for aggravated assault, eight for burglary, nine for larceny, two for auto theft, six for embezzlement, two for receiving stolen property, 16 for forgery, two for statutory charges, one for concealed weapons three for non-support, five for liquor law violations, 12 for driving when intoxicated, one for traffic law violation, two for drunkenness and one for gambling.

58 Plead Guilty

The court record shows 58 guilty pleas, nine found guilty by the court, two jury convictions, two pleas of guilty to lesser offenses, one jury acquittal, one court acquittal, and one case disposed of on demurrer. The 1937 report shows 78 criminals added to the docket that year.

Money judgments during the last year amounted to $33,713.96. Jury fees totaled $3,069.87. In the 1937 report the judgment amounted to $37,717.68, and in 1936, $73,334.59. Civil actions filed during the year totaled 217. Two hundred and eighteen were filed in the 1936-1937 report.

Twenty seven coroner's inquests were filed. In 1937 there were 29, in 1936, 32.

Philip Teegardin Plans Observance of Birthday

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Philip Teegardin, a long time resident and prominent businessman of Ashville, but now of Columbus, on next Monday, July 11, will have reached his nineteenth birthday which is to be fittingly observed by holding an afternoon and evening picnic supper for him on Sunday, July 10, at Humbolt Country Club Park, Groveport pike. And all of Mr. Teegardin's old friends are invited to fix a lunch basket and be there. He will much enjoy meeting you.

Jerome Peters who will reach his 90th birthday on August 22, was here at our Fourth of July doings and we had a fine visit with him. He was thoroughly alive to everything going on about him and gave the names of tunes of music being played in nearby distance. And near us, stood a neatly frocked gentleman who attracted his attention, and Mr. Peters said to us: "I'll bet that man is a preacher", and Jerome had properly diagnosed the case because we soon gave this chap "the third" and found him to be a Lancaster Methodist minister and from what he said, we'll bet he's doing good work. He is conducting a mission there. Said he knew Doc. Plum very well and had a good word for him.

SURGERY MAKES OVER RECEDING, JUTTING CHINS

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—An operation used by dental surgeons to correct jutting or receding chins was described at Temple University Dental School at a program celebrating the school's 75th anniversary.

Dr. James R. Cameron, professor of oral surgery, said the operation was known technically as resection of the ramus, the short "handle" of the lower jaw which locks with the upper jaw in front of the ear.

The ramus is cut horizontally and the jaw moved forward or backward as much as a half inch, then the teeth are wired together until the bones knit, according to Dr. Cameron.

British Troops Mount Guns On Public Buildings To Combat Fighters

CRISIS IS EXPECTED

Government To Send Aid To Commander

JERUSALEM, July 8—(UP)—Four Arabs were killed and 15 wounded today when a hand grenade was exploded near the American colony stores in the old quarter of Jerusalem.

A Jewess was arrested on suspicion that she threw the bomb. The bomb was of the Mills type used in the British army.

British troops mounted machine guns on roofs of public buildings here and at Haifa, and authorities appealed urgently to London for reinforcements, to combat Jewish and Arab extremists as a new day of terror commenced.

British navy officers landed at Haifa and inspected the troubled areas. It was reported that blue-jackets and marines would take charge of the city after the arrival there today of the battle cruiser Repulse, now enroute at full steam to join the cruiser Emerald which arrived yesterday.

Traffic Halted

British troops drew a "sanitary cordon" completely around Haifa, isolating it from other towns and stopping all traffic, as authorities were advised that Arab bands were being formed to march on Haifa and avenge the shooting of Arabs in a clash which cost the lives of 20 persons Wednesday.

Fears of open civil war were intensified as British officered frontier forces clashed on the Jordan border with a body of 600 Arabs who sought to enter Palestine and join their fellows. British Royal Air Force airplanes co-operated with troops in throwing back the invaders. Dispatches said that five Arabs were killed, eight wounded and one captured.

It was reported that Sir Harold MacMichael, British commander in chief and high commissioner in Palestine, had received assurances from the British government that he would receive full support in steps he might deem necessary, however stern, to restore and maintain law and order.

As the result, British authorities were expected to take action of the firmest sort.

The curfew was extended to start at 7 p. m. here as well as at Haifa, instead of 9 p. m. as previously, and an order imposing martial law was expected at any hour.

An announcement was awaited from London that two battalions of British troops, numbering 4,000 men, had left Egypt to reinforce the 8,000 British troops already in Palestine.

Troops here and at Haifa had been on continuous duty for more than 24 hours because tempers were so high that Arab policemen could not serve in Jewish areas or Jewish policemen in Arab ones.

Moslem, and Christian leaders of the Arab community, in a conference with the British commander in chief, asked that he adopt the same stern measures against Jewish extremists as he had done in previous months against Arab rioters.

Texas, several years ago saw Donald Woods play the lead in "The Royal Family" she immediately decided that he was the finest actor in the world, and that she would act with him some day. She is his leading lady in Universal's "The Black Doll," now at the Grand Theatre.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Richard Dix returns to the screen in another of his powerful dramatic characterizations as the star of "Blind Alibi," an RKO Radio picture which is showing to-night and Saturday on a double feature program at the Cliftona Theatre. The star of the well remembered "Cimarron" has never been seen to better advantage than in this tensely dramatic story of a sculptor, a faithful dog and a beautiful girl who loved them both.

Sharing honors with the virile star are Whitney Bourne, as his romantic interest, Eduardo Cienfuegos as the menace, and "Ace, the Wonder Dog."

Dix, as a struggling sculptor, pledges his aid in recovering from blackmailers certain letters his sister wrote. While prosecuting his exciting search, he pretends blindness behind a pair of smoked glasses and uses a guiding dog to further carry out his masquerade. Romance develops during his perils when he meets Whitney Bourne.

DIVORCE SUITS AND CRIMINAL CASES INCREASE

Clerk's Report Discloses Year's Activity In Pickaway County

JUDGMENTS GO LOWER

72 Sentences Imposed For Various Crimes

Divorce actions and criminal cases filed in Common Pleas court during the year ending June 30 showed an increase over the previous year while money judgments decreased.

This information is revealed in the annual report of A. L. Wilder, clerk of Common Pleas court, compiled for the secretary of state.

Eighty divorce cases were brought during the last year while 13 were pending on July 1, 1937. Only 48 were listed in the 1937 report, 64 in the 1936 report. In the eighty cases brought during the last year seven were for willful absence, one for infidelity, 12 for extreme cruelty, 57 for gross neglect, one for drunkenness and two were miscellaneous charges. Five charging cruelty and eight charging neglect were pending.

53 Cases Decided

The court decided 53 cases during the year, granting three divorces for willful absence, seven for cruelty, 41 for gross neglect and two on miscellaneous charges. Those pending include four for neglect and one for drunkenness.

Husbands filed 28 suits, wives 65. Thirty-five divorces were granted to wives, 18 to husbands. Ninety-two criminal cases were before the court during the year. Seventy-two sentences were imposed: 24 persons being sent to reformatories or the penitentiary, 17 to the county jail, 16 given fines and costs, and 15 were placed on probation.

The cases included two for aggravated assault, eight for burglary, nine for larceny, two for auto theft, six for embezzlement, two for receiving stolen property, 16 for forgery, two for statutory charges, one for concealed weapons three for non-support, five for liquor law violations, 12 for driving when intoxicated, one for traffic law violation, two for drunkenness and one for gambling.

58 Plead Guilty

The court record shows 58 guilty pleas, nine found guilty by the court, two jury convictions, two pleas of guilty to lesser offenses, one jury acquittal, one court acquittal, and one case disposed of on demurrer. The 1937 report shows 78 criminals added to the docket that year.

Money judgments during the last year amounted to $33,713.96. Jury fees totaled $3,069.87. In the 1937 report the judgment amounted to $37,717.68, and in 1936, $73,334.59. Civil actions filed during the year totaled 217. Two hundred and eighteen were filed in the 1936-1937 report.

Twenty-seven coroner's inquests were filed. In 1937 there were 29, in 1936, 32.

Philip Teegardin Plans Observance of Birthday

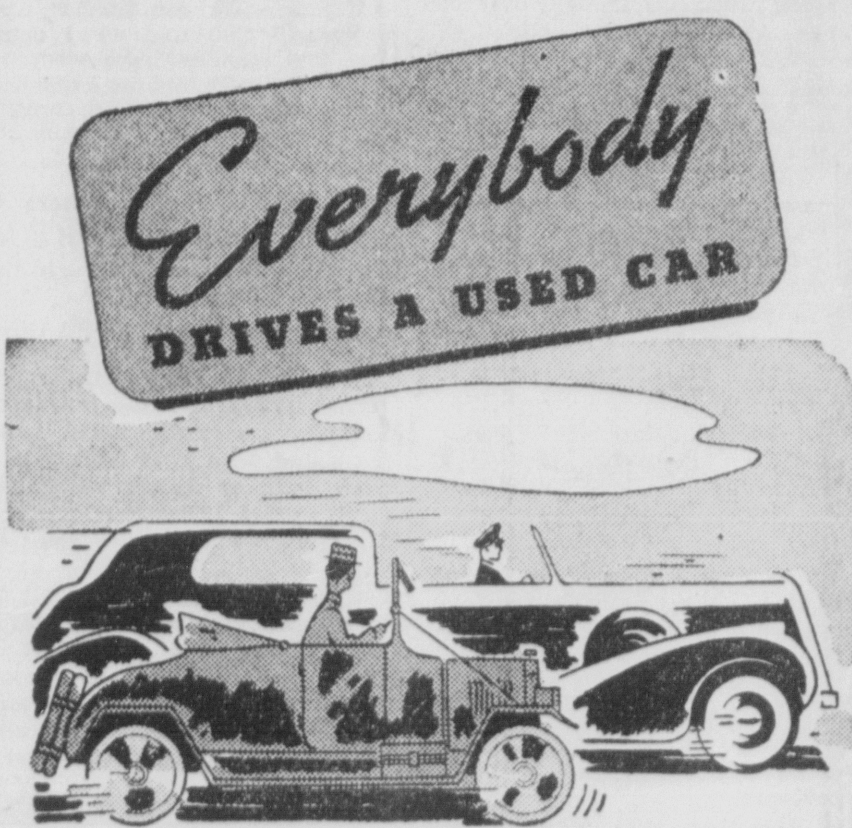

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Philip Teegardin, a long time resident and prominent business man of Ashville, but now of Columbus, on next Monday, July 11, will have reached his ninetieth birthday which is to be fittingly observed by holding an afternoon and evening picnic supper for him on Sunday, July 10, at Humbolt Country Club Park, Groveport pike. And all of Mr. Teegardin's old friends are invited to fix a lunch basket and be there. He will much enjoy meeting you.

Jerome Peters who will reach his 90th birthday on August 22, was here at our Fourth of July doings and we had a fine visit with him. He was thoroughly alive to everything going on about him and gave the names of tunes of music being played in nearby distance. And near us, stood a neatly frocked gentleman who attracted his attention, and Mr. Peters said to us: "I'll bet that man is a preacher", and Jerome had properly diagnosed the case because we soon gave this chap "the third" and found him to be a Lancaster Methodist minister and from what he said, we'll bet he's doing good work. He is conducting a mission there. Said he knew Doc Plum very well and had a good word for him.

The village council was in session Wednesday evening and paid bills amounting to $1041.27, $428.90 of this amount was to Fred Curry as balance on erection of toilets at the park. The entire cost of these toilets complete, was near $1200. Village Clerk Richard Wills told us. Other than the bill paying, a number of streets are to be resurfaced and placed in good condition. The improved north part of Cromley street is to receive attention in the form of drainage.

OPEN LETTERS

TO MEEKER TERWILLIGER

DEAR SIR: Congratulations go to you from all Pickaway countians for your appointment as judge of the Common Pleas court. No better choice could have been made. Your experience before the bar of Ohio, your success as solicitor and prosecutor, your education and your popularity among members of the bar and citizens with whom you come in contact each day are sufficient attributes to assure your success on the county's bench. Your fellow lawyers had much to do with your appointment by voting an indorsement. Am happy that you found it possible to assume the bench at such an early date. The docket, heavy because of the illness that kept Judge Adkins off the bench, should be cleared up. Judge Henderson of Logan has been doing a good job as a substitute and, I am sure, county attorneys are pleased with the manner in which he has substituted. You will be starting your new task with the wholehearted support of the entire community that you will represent, so, I believe, your success is certain.

CIRCUITEER.

TO ASHVILLE RESIDENTS

FRIENDS: Congratulations for the fine Fourth of July celebration you sponsored. Your observance improves each year and annually attracts more visitors. The celebration is one of the outstanding in Central Ohio. Circleville residents always take a great interest in the program and wish you every success for a greater celebration next year.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SCHOOL BOARDS

EDUCATORS: I have read many lists of newly-employed teachers in the last few weeks, but it is not often that names of Pickaway county young men and women appear among them. Why wouldn't it be proper for school boards, especially those in rural districts, to employ home county teachers whenever possible. The Circleville board has always enjoyed a reputation for employing home talent whenever there is an available applicant. I believe much goodwill could be built up if county schools would use the same policy.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MAYOR CADY

EXECUTIVE: The fact that you recognize Court street as a speedway is evidence that ere long something will be done about this trap that has taken a high toll in life and property. For a long while no one would admit that the Route 23 thoroughfare through the county seat was being used as a testing ground for high speed demons who used the road to determine how fast their cars would go. Why there have not been more deaths along Court street is a mystery. A couple of traffic lights installed at proper places would do much to slow down the heavy traffic that can be blamed for the mishaps. A light is needed at Northridge road and possibly one or two blocks South of that dangerous intersection. Police, when possible, should give some attention to Court street's steady stream of traffic.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SAFETY DIRECTOR

DEAR SIR: Your recent instructions to the police department to enforce double-parking regulations was needed, but I believe some revisions should be made on the parking limitation. Double parking large trucks in the downtown district for a longer period than necessary is a nuisance and a traffic hazard. I have received numerous complaints from motorists concerning parking conditions on W. Main street. Some motorists say that at times it is impossible to find a parking space and it is necessary for them to double park to go into stores or offices. In recent months the two-hour parking regulations have not been enforced. Enforcement of two-hour parking on W. Main street would relieve the double parking question and cause fewer complaints from motorists. It is worth a trial. Employees of stores who park their cars on the street throughout the day are the big problem. By enforcing the two-hour parking regulations on W. Main street they would have to park their cars on some other street. This would give visitors an opportunity to stop without double-parking.

CIRCUITEER.

TO J. WRAY HENRY

DEAR SIR: Circleville's board of education made a wise selection when it employed you as principal. Your extensive training and wide experience in teaching gives you every qualification to ably fill the position. I wish you every success in your work.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SALT CREEK RESIDENTS

RURAL FOLK: Next Tuesday evening a meeting of importance to every resident of Saltcreek township will be held in the school building. It is being conducted for a general discussion of the proposed consolidation of the Saltcreek district with the Adelphi-Harrison district of Ross county and the Laurelville-Perry district of Hocking county. The proposed consolidation includes erection of a new building at a cost of about $150,000 at Routes 56 and Route 180 in Saltcreek township. Low enrollments in the three schools have resulted in the consolidation plans. Similar meetings will be held in the other districts to obtain the opinions of residents.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PICNICKERS

DEAR FOLK: Another Pickaway county child has been the victim of a drowning accident, the second this year. Wading or swimming in streams is dangerous. Floods change the courses of Pickaway county streams practically every year. A wading place last year may be 10 feet deep this year. Children should not be permitted to wade or swim in streams unless they are closely watched by an adult who is a capable swimmer. Take no chances.

World At A Glance

Even a New Deal sympathizer, if a veteran in Washington, is entitled to feel a certain sort of sentimental pang at Representative Bertrand H. Snell's announcement of his retirement for congress simultaneously with James E. Watson's defeat for another nomination as a senatorial candidate in Indiana.

As Republican Old Guard men it is unimaginable that Capitol Hill ever again will see that pair's equals.

Each was a perfect specimen of the G. O. P. Old Guard species. And it is a sad thing to see the last two examples of an already almost extinct race vanishing into complete oblivion.

WATSON'S END

"Jim" Watson's case is the more tragic of the two.

As for "Hard-Boiled Bert", as he was known, he quits because he feels like it. I have no doubt that his up-state New York district would have sent him again to the capital if he had remained in the running. At nearly 68, however, he was tired of public life, and dropped out of it voluntarily.

Former Senator Watson, however, was beaten for re-election in 1932. After a six-year lapse, now has been defeated at nearly 74, for his own party's senatorial nomination. That ends "Jim" Watson.

WAS A POWER

Watson was a power in Washington for a generation.

He came here as representative in 1895, rose to the rating of majority "whip of the house", was promoted to the senate 22 years ago, became his party's leader in the upper congressional chamber, was majority leader for a long time; Then minority leader after the Democrats gained control, but not such overwhelming control as at present.

He always was a capable leader. Liberals, to be sure, regarded him as an arch-conservative. Nevertheless, they liked him. He was as lovable a character as ever occupied a senate seat. And technical ly, for his era, he was an exceedingly clever politician.

The New Deal sweep of 1932 limnated him temporarily, as he hoped.

It proves to have been permanent—as the recent Indiana primary results indicated.

SYMPATHY UNNEEDED HERE

"Hard-Boiled Bert" doesn't deserve so much sympathy. Or maybe, I should say, he doesn't need so much.

"Bert" for years has been Republican leader in the house of representatives, as Watson was in the senate. In earlier days, when "Bert's" side was in a representative majority, "Bert" was not so considerate of the minority as Watson was in the senate.

"Bert" has been frightfully anti-New Dealerish.

No one sympathizes with "Bert". He is not exactly liked. He has kept up a creditable rear-guard action to the present juncture.

"Jim's" own forces have deserted him.

DIET AND HEALTH

Healthful Summer Routine Keeps Infants Fit

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AS SHORT a time ago as the beginning of this century, from 1901 to 1905, the death rate among infants began to rise sharply by the beginning of June, and by the middle of July it had reached the highest peak of the year. It was five times as great as the other high peak in March. It began to decline in August, and by September had reached a mean level.

In 1931-1935, the death rate among infants was lower during the summer months.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

June, July, August and September had at any other period in the year.

The difference is due to the disappearance of infantile diarrhea. This is due to sanitary milk and water supply. But it is astonishing that the improvement has occurred since such a short time ago. In 1901 the fact that infantile dysentery was due to germs transmitted in milk was well known. So, too, was the means of producing and distributing clean milk. The improvement that has occurred in 30 years is a matter of organization and persistent effort.

That effort must be kept up if our present high standard of infant health in the summer is to be maintained. The germs are not destroyed, and the ancient plague will break out again with all its virulence at the slightest slip in vigilance. Our public health service knows this and devotes most of its time these days to this problem.

How can milk be safeguarded to prevent it from transmitting disease?

These who are likely to read this paper do not constitute the heart of the problem: they are at an economic level where they can obtain certified milk, evaporated milk or pasteurized milk from a clean dairy. And they are on a level of intelligence such that they know what the health requirements of a milk supply for their family are and will insist that those requirements be met.

The real problem is in the thriving dens of those too poor and too ignorant to insist on clean milk. Here the public health department does its effective supervision. Boiled milk is the ideal answer. In many parts of Europe and South America, where they boil the milk they have practically no milk-borne disease. But here we cannot depend on enough people boiling the milk to prevent epidemics. At table B, the first four tricks were the same, but then the declarer led a low spade and allowed East to win. After a club return another spade was offered and ducked. The club return was ruffed and the spade A cashed. The thirteenth spade provided a spot for one diamond loser. As a result the contract was made.

At table C, East switched to a diamond after winning the first spade trick and set the contract. Where 3-No Trumps was bid, the contract was made easily.

BY MAUD MCCURDY WELCH

READ THIS FIRST!
Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, is in love with Dr. Julian Faige, a serious-minded young physician who declares he will not permit himself to fall in love with Noel because of the contrasting worlds in which they live. Determined to show Julian she has stamina, Noel gives up a long trip with her aunt, turns over her income of $100,000 to her uncle who is in financial difficulties, buys her first outfit of inexpensive clothes and tells Julian she is going to find a job. After moving to a dingy rooming house, she finds an ad for a governess. About to start on her new adventure, she finds her purse has been stolen, leaving her with only $1. Applying for the governess post, Noel is given a cool reception and no job. Later, dropping in at Julian's office, she is irked by the antagonistic manner of Ruth Chester, his pretty nurse. Finding nothing else, Noel takes a job as a taxi dancer, temporarily. She offers to share her room with Laurie Evans, a girl she met in the park. Laurie has just lost her job at the same dance hall. Then Noel runs into Julian.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 6

AFTER JULIAN had discovered Noel as he came out of the Medical Arts building, they entered the De Luxe, a place for which Noel was beginning to have a real respect. She sat back and let Julian order, luxuriating in the white-tiled cleanliness of the place, the clatter of the spotless dishes and the savory odors of broiling steaks and good food.

Now and then she stole a glance at Julian's dark face, his clean-cut profile, and the slight suggestion of a dimple in his firm chin. It was wonderful to be sitting here beside him in this bright clean place. She closed her eyes on a little dizzying wave of happiness. Already she was beginning to understand some of the joy of simple things, and was conscious of a new appreciation and alertness of her senses.

Julian finished giving the waitress the order. Then he looked at Noel, a troubled expression on his face. "Noel, I've been thinking of you almost every minute since you convinced me that you actually intended going through with this reckless idea."

"How flattering!" she said lightly, beginning to apply herself to the green salad.

"Now, none of your flattery," Julian replied with mock severity. "The more I think of your idea of going to work, the more fantastic it seems," he continued. "I didn't believe your aunt would go off without you. I thought she would disapprove in no uncertain words."

"Frankie?" Noel looked up with a teasing smile. "She didn't try to dissuade me," she went on thinking affectionately of her aunt and hoping she was not being too bored in California alone.

"Listen, my child," Julian went on in his gentle admonitory voice. "It was Shakespeare, I think, who made the sage remark to the effect that 'the working-day world is full of briars' and that's the way you'll find it. No less. You'd better decide right here and now to join your aunt wherever she is."

"Couldn't think of it," Noel said smilingly, as she took a sip of what she was sure was the most delicious milk she had ever tasted. She hadn't tasted milk in ages, but Julian had insisted in his masterful way, had ordered it over her little protest, and here she was drinking it. "Really, I'm having a perfectly grand time," Noel went on, her voice a little more boastful than she had intended it to be.

"All right then," Julian suddenly capitulated. "But I insist on having a full and complete report of what you're doing, and what you're expecting to do."

Noel hadn't expected this. She pretended to be engrossed in her salad, while she thought over how she should answer him. She wouldn't dare tell him that the only place she had at present was that of a taxi dancer in a cheap club. He would immediately find a dozen objections. In fact, he was quite capable of packing her off to Frankie before she could realize he was doing it. Julian had a way of getting things done. She had already found that out.

"What do you mean?" asked Noel.

Finally she said with a smile, still not looking up from her salad. "You'll be glad to hear that I'm in line for a—really nice place. I think I'll get it tomorrow."

"Tell me about it," Julian relaxed and smiled.

At this juncture Noel became very interested in her lamb chop. It was her nature to be frank on all occasions, but she thought the situation she faced now would justify a bit of equivocation. After all, she didn't intend staying at the Peacock a minute longer than she had to.

"You see, it's this way, the job I'm expecting—hoping to get... is that of a kind of nursery governess. I think I could hold down a place like that. But I haven't—that is, I don't know yet whether I'll get a place like this or not. It's what I'm looking for."

Julian's expression cleared entirely. "That is very sensible, Noel. You'd be protected in a place like that."

Noel lifted her eyes then and said demurely, "Is it because you feel a sense of responsibility toward me, or are you really interested in my—career?"

Julian smiled teasingly. "Purely a sense of responsibility, my dear. After all, I'm the cause, unwittingly, of course, of your getting such ideas into your head."

"So that's the only reason, is it?" she asked after a slight pause. Julian smiled straight into her ardent blue eyes. "All right, then, I'll admit that I'm interested in you personally," he said, and went on as though against his will, "interacted far more than any young doctor with his career hardly started should be in a girl like you, who has practically the whole world for her playground, and any number of wealthy playfellows at her feet."

"But suppose all that means nothing to me?" she protested.

"You've put yourself in a fine position to find out just how much it does mean," his answer came back with emphasis. Then he added, "Of course I know it's only a matter of a short time before you'll be only too willing to go back to your flesh-pots."

"That's what you think!" Noel retorted. "You told me I didn't have any stamina," she went on. "You practically told me I was useless except for—decorative purposes. Don't you know any girl on earth would resent that? Well, I still say I'm going to show you that you are wrong. And I haven't the slightest intention of giving up and going back until I've accomplished what I set out to do." Her eyes flashed with determination.

A glow came into Julian's eyes. "You'll be glad to hear that I'm in line for a—really nice place. I think I'll get it tomorrow."

"No, not really," he suddenly acquiesced with the whimsical smile she loved. "Then he rose. 'I've got to get back to the clinic this very minute.' His eyes were serious now. 'Whether you get tired of this unequal struggle or not, Noel, let me hear from you every day or so. Promise me again.'"

"I promise," Noel said in a low voice.

"Stay and finish your dinner. You've only been toying with it," he advised, then added, "Good night," as he rose.

"Good night, Julian," Noel said softly, her voice lingering in a little unconscious caress on the last word. She watched his tall figure as he moved up to the cashier's desk, paid the check and went out the door.

Noel, obediently, finished her dinner. She hadn't intended doing anything else. Food was food.

When she left the cafe, she was surprised to find Ruth Chester outside. "I want to speak to you, Miss Shayne," she said moving up to Noel.

"So you know my name?" Noel exclaimed puzzled.

"Oh, I read the society columns and sometimes look at the pictures," Ruth shrugged.

They walked on then slowly toward Main.

"I just want to tell you," Ruth Chester began coolly, "that your little scheme won't work."

Noel stared at her. "What do you mean?"

"Your scheme to be close to Julian Faige," Ruth Chester went on. "It's obvious and perfectly silly, if you're asking me."

"I'm not asking you and I'm not interested in your opinion," Noel retorted.

A flame of anger rushed to Ruth Chester's olive cheeks. She looked back with blazing dark eyes.

"I'll tell you this anyway," she went on, restraining her anger with a great effort. "Julian doesn't care a rap about your money. He's not in love with you. And even if he were, he'd never marry you. There's a darn good reason why—her voice broke with anger then and she turned and walked away. (To Be Continued)

OPEN LETTERS

TO MEEKER TERWILLIGER

DEAR SIR: Congratulations go to you from all Pickaway countians for your appointment as judge of the Common Pleas court. No better choice could have been made. Your experience before the bar of Ohio, your success as solicitor and prosecutor, your education and your popularity among members of the bar and citizens with whom you come in contact each day are sufficient attributes to assure your success on the county's bench. Your fellow lawyers had much to do with your appointment by voting an indorsement. Am happy that you found it possible to assume the bench at such an early date. The docket, heavy because of the illness that kept Judge Adkins off the bench, should be cleared up. Judge Henderson of Logan has been doing a good job as a substitute and, I am sure, county attorneys are pleased with the manner in which he has substituted. You will be starting your new task with the wholehearted support of the entire community that you will represent, so, I believe, your success is certain.

CIRCUITEER.

TO ASHVILLE RESIDENTS

FRIENDS: Congratulations for the fine Fourth of July celebration you sponsored. Your observance improves each year and annually attracts more visitors. The celebration is one of the outstanding in Central Ohio. Circleville residents always take a great interest in the program and wish you every success for a greater celebration next year.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SCHOOL BOARDS

EDUCATORS: I have read many lists of newly-employed teachers in the last few weeks, but it is not often that names of Pickaway county young men and women appear among them. Why wouldn't it be proper for school boards, especially those in rural districts, to employ home county teachers whenever possible. The Circleville board has always enjoyed a reputation for employing home talent whenever there is an available applicant. I believe much goodwill could be built up if county schools would use the same policy.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MAYOR CADY

EXECUTIVE: The fact that you recognize Court street as a speedway is evidence that ere long something will be done about this trap that has taken a high toll in life and property. For a long while no one would admit that the Route 23 thoroughfare through the county seat was being used as a testing ground for high speed demons who used the road to determine how fast their cars would go. Why there have not been more deaths along Court street is a mystery. A couple of traffic lights installed at proper places would do much to slow down the heavy traffic that can be blamed for the mishaps. A light is needed at Northridge road and possibly one or two blocks South of that dangerous intersection. Police, when possible, should give some attention to Court street's steady stream of traffic.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SAFETY DIRECTOR

DEAR SIR: Your recent instructions to the police department to enforce double-parking regulations was needed, but I believe some revisions should be made on the parking limitation. Double parking large trucks in the downtown district for a longer period than necessary is a nuisance and a traffic hazard. I have received numerous complaints from motorists concerning parking conditions on W. Main street. Some motorists say that at times it is impossible to find a parking space and it is necessary for them to double park to go into stores or offices. In recent months the two-hour parking regulations have not been enforced. Enforcement of two-hour parking on W. Main street would relieve the double parking question and cause fewer complaints from motorists. It is worth a trial. Employees of stores who park their cars on the street throughout the day are the big problem. By enforcing the two-hour parking regulations on W. Main street they would have to park their cars on some other street. This would give visitors an opportunity to stop without double-parking.

CIRCUITEER.

TO J. WRAY HENRY

DEAR SIR: Circleville's board of education made a wise selection when it employed you as principal. Your extensive training and wide experience in teaching gives you every qualification to ably fill the position. I wish you every success in your work.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SALTREEK RESIDENTS

RURAL FOLK: Next Tuesday evening a meeting of importance to every resident of Saltcreek township will be held in the school building. It is being conducted for a general discussion of the proposed consolidation of the Saltcreek district with the Adelphi-Harrison district of Ross county and the Laurelville-Perry district of Hocking county. The proposed consolidation includes erection of a new building at a cost of about $150,000 at Routes 56 and Route 180 in Saltcreek township. Low enrollments in the three schools have resulted in the consolidation plans. Similar meetings will be held in the other districts to obtain the opinions of residents.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PICNICKERS

DEAR FOLK: Another Pickaway county child has been the victim of a drowning accident, the second this year. Wading or swimming in streams is dangerous. Floods change the courses of Pickaway county streams practically every year. A wading place last year may be 10 feet deep this year. Children should not be permitted to wade or swim in streams unless they are closely watched by an adult who is a capable swimmer. Take no chances.

CIRCUITEER.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Even a New Deal sympathizer, if a veteran in Washington, is entitled to feel a certain sort of sentimental pang at Representative Bertrand H. Snell's announcement of his retirement for congress simultaneously with James E. Watson's defeat for another nomination as a senatorial candidate in Indiana.

As Republican Old Guardsmen it is unimaginable that Capitol Hill ever again will see that pair's equals.

Each was a perfect specimen of the G. O. P. Old Guard species. And it is a sad thing to see the last two examples of an already almost extinct race vanishing into complete oblivion.

WATSON'S END
"Jim" Watson's case is the more tragic of the two.

As for "Hard-Boiled Bert", as he was known, he quits because he feels like it. I have no doubt that his up-state New York district would have sent him again to the capital if he had remained in the running. At nearly 68, however, he was tired of public life, and dropped out of it voluntarily.

Former Senator Watson, however, was beaten for re-election in 1932. After a six-year lapse, now, has been defeated at nearly 74, for his own party's senatorial nomination. That ends "Jim" Watson.

WAS A POWER

Watson was a power in Washington for a generation.

He came here as representative in 1895, rose to the rating of majority "whip of the house", was promoted to the senate 22 years ago, became his party's leader in the upper congressional chamber, was majority leader for a long time; Then minority leader after the Democrats gained control, but not such overwhelming control as at present.

He always was a capable leader. Liberals, to be sure, regarded him as an arch-conservative. Nevertheless, they liked him. He was as lovable a character as ever occupied a senate seat. And technical ly, for his era, he was an exceedingly clever politician.

The New Deal sweep of 1932 eliminated him temporarily, as he hoped.

It proves to have been permanent—as the recent Indiana primary results indicated.

SYMPATHY UNNEEDED HERE
"Hard-Boiled Bert" doesn't deserve so much sympathy. Or maybe, I should say, he doesn't need so much.

"Bert" for years has been Republican leader in the house of representatives, as Watson was in the senate. In earlier days, when "Bert's" side was in a representative majority, "Bert" was not so considerate of the minority as Watson was in the senate.

"Bert" has been frightfully anti-New Dealerish.

DIET AND HEALTH

Healthful Summer Routine Keeps Infants Fit

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AS SHORT a time ago as the beginning of this century, from 1901 to 1905, the death rate among infants began to rise sharply with the beginning of June, and by the middle of July it had reached the highest peak of the year. It was five times as great as the other high peak in March. It began to decline in August, and by September had reached a mean level.

In 1931-1935, the death rate among infants was lower during June, July, August and September than at any other period in the year.

The difference is due to the disappearance of infantile diarrhea. This is due to sanitary milk and water supply. But it is astonishing that the improvement has occurred since such a short time ago, cured since the fact that infantile diarrhea was due to germs transmitted in milk was well known. So, too, was the means of producing and distributing clean milk. The improvement that has occurred in 30 years is a matter of organization and persistent effort.

That effort must be kept up if our present high standard of infant health in the summer is to be maintained. The germs are not destroyed, and the ancient plague will break out again with all its virulence at the slightest slip in vigilance. Our public health service knows this and devotes most of its time these days to this problem.

How can milk be safeguarded to prevent it from transmitting disease?

Those who are likely to read this paper do not constitute the heart of the problem; they are at an economic level where they can obtain certified milk, evaporated milk or pasteurized milk from a clean dairy. And they are on a level of intelligence such that they know what the health requirements of a milk supply for their family are and will insist that those requirements be met.

The real problem is in the thriving dens of those too poor and too ignorant to insist on clean milk. Here the public health department does its effective supervision. Boiled milk is the ideal answer. In many parts of Europe and South America, where they boil the milk they have practically no milk-borne disease. But here we cannot depend on enough people boiling the milk to prevent epidemics. Noel hadn't expected this. She pretended to be engrossed in her salad, while she thought over how she should answer him. She wouldn't dare tell him that the only place she had at present was that of a taxi dancer in a cheap club. He would immediately find a dozen objections. In fact, he was quite capable of packing her off to Frankie before she could realize he was doing it. Julian had a way of getting things done. She had already found that out.

"What do you mean?" asked Noel.

Finally she said with a smile, still not looking up from her salad, "You'll be glad to hear that I'm in line for a—a really nice place. I think I'll get it tomorrow."

"Tell me about it," Julian relaxed and smiled. At this juncture Noel became very interested in her lamb chop. It was her nature to be frank on all occasions, but she thought the situation she faced now would justify a bit of equivocation. After all, she didn't intend staying at the Peacock a minute longer than she had to.

"You see, it's this way, the job I'm expecting—hoping to get... is that of a kind of nursery governess. I think I could hold down a place like that. But I haven't—that is, I don't know yet whether I'll get a place like this or not. It's what I'm looking for."

Julian's expression cleared entirely. "That is very sensible, Noel. You'd be protected in a place like that."

Noel lifted her eyes then and said demurely, "Is it because you feel a sense of responsibility toward me, or are you really interested in my—career?"

Julian smiled teasingly. "Purely a sense of responsibility, my dear. After all, I'm the cause, unwittingly, of course, of your getting such ideas into your head."

"So that's the only reason, is it?" she asked after a slight pause.

Julian smiled straight into her ardent blue eyes. "All right, then, I'll admit that I'm interested in you personally," he said, and went on as though against his will, "interested far more than any young doctor with his career hardly started should be in a girl like you, who has practically the whole world for her playground, and any number of wealthy playfellows at her feet."

"But suppose all that means nothing to me?" she protested. "You've put yourself in a fine position to find out just how much it does mean," his answer came back with emphasis. Then he added, "Of course I know it's only a matter of a short time before you'll be only too willing to get back to your flesh-pots."

"That's what you think!" Noel retorted. "You told me I didn't have any stamina," she went on. "You practically told me I was useless except for—decorative purposes. Don't you know any girl on earth would resent that? Well, I still say I'm going to show you that you are wrong. And I haven't the slightest intention of giving up and going back until I've accomplished what I set out to do." Her eyes flashed with determination.

A glow came into Julian's eyes. When he spoke, it was quite irrelevantly, "I could wish you were not quite so attractive, Noel."

"Do you really?" she mocked lightly. "No, not really," he suddenly acquiesced with the whimsical smile she loved. Then he rose. "I've got to get back to the clinic this very minute." His eyes were serious now. "Whether you get tired of this unequal struggle or not, Noel, let me hear from you every day or so. Promise me again."

"I promise," Noel said in a low voice. "Stay and finish your dinner. You've only been toying with it," he advised, then added, "Good night," as he rose. "Good night, Julian," Noel said softly, her voice lingering in a little unconscious caress on the last word. She watched his tall figure as he moved up to the cashier's desk, paid the check and went out the door.

Noel, obediently, finished her dinner. She hadn't intended doing anything else. Food was food. When she left the cafe, she was surprised to find Ruth Chester outside. "I want to speak to you, Miss Shayne," she said moving up to Noel.

"So you know my name?" Noel exclaimed puzzled.

"Oh, I read the society columns and sometimes look at the pictures," Ruth shrugged. They walked on then slowly toward Main.

"I just want to tell you," Ruth Chester began coolly, "that your little scheme won't work."

Noel stared at her. "What do you mean?"

"Your scheme to be close to Julian Paige," Ruth Chester went on. "It's obvious and perfectly silly, if you're asking me."

"I'm not asking you and I'm not interested in your opinion," Noel retorted.

A flame of anger rushed to Ruth Chester's olive cheeks. She looked at Noel with blazing dark eyes. "I'll tell you this anyway," she went on, restraining her anger with a great effort. "Julian doesn't care a rap about your money. He's not in love with you. And even if he were, he'd never marry you. There's a darn good reason why—her voice broke with anger then and she turned and walked away. (To Be Continued)

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

RED COLORED LARVA
YELLOW AND BLACK STRIPED POTATO BEETLE

Potato growing pointers

THE SOIL around potatoes should be cultivated as soon as the plants are up out of the ground enough to mark the rows. Clean cultivation should be continued throughout the growing season.

Shown in the Garden-Graph, the potato beetle and larvae appear soon after the plants come up. The eggs are laid on the under side of the leaves, and the adults begin to eat immediately. The larvae hatch soon and begin eating also. They are very destructive, but can be controlled by arsenate of lead. This treatment also will eliminate the destructive blister beetle.

When the vines wilt down, the soil should be hoed up around the roots. This holds the plant up and protects the tubers from the heat of the sun.

Keeping ground well cultivated will keep down weeds and permit rapid penetration of rainfall. Water runs off when the ground is hard and baked.

Hardy chrysanthemums may well be pinched back at the tips to make them bushier and to give more bloom. Keep the plants well watered and sprayed.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Potato growing pointers

THE SOIL around potatoes should be cultivated as soon as the plants are up out of the ground enough to mark the rows. Clean cultivation should be continued throughout the growing season.

Shown in the Garden-Graph, the potato beetle and larvae appear soon after the plants come up. The eggs are laid on the under side of the leaves, and the adults begin to eat immediately. The larvae hatch soon and begin eating also. They are very destructive, but can be controlled by arsenate of lead. This treatment also will eliminate the destructive blister beetle. When the vines wilt down, the soil should be hoed up around the roots. This holds the plant up and protects the tubers from the heat of the sun.

Keeping ground well cultivated will keep down weeds and permit rapid penetration of rainfall. Water runs off when the ground is hard and baked.

Hardy chrysanthemums may well be pinched back at the tips to make them bushier and to give more bloom. Keep the plants well watered and sprayed.

Larger Supply Of Good Grade Cattle Now Available

MARKETING HEAVIER

Demand Strong For Feeder Stock

WASHINGTON, July 8—(UP)—The supply of better grades of beef cattle will be "considerably more plentiful" this Summer and Fall than a year ago, according to the Department of Agriculture. Increased supplies of slaughter cattle are in prospect for the Summer months the department said. Prices likely will decline somewhat it was said.

"Present indications are that marketings of well-finished, grain-fed cattle during the next three or four months will continue to increase seasonally, and will be considerably larger in the Summer and Fall months than in corresponding months of 1932," the report said.

Early Advance Unlikely

"Although prices of such cattle frequently tend to advance in early Summer, no market advance is expected in that period this year, chiefly because of weakness in the demand for meats. But in the late Summer or early Fall, some seasonal advance in prices of the better grades may occur."

Marketings of cows and heifers have been relatively small this Spring because of the abundant supplies of feed, good range and pasture conditions and the consequent demand for breeding stock. "During the Summer and Fall months, some decline in prices of the lower grades of slaughter steers and heifers, and of all grades of cows is likely to occur as supplies of such cattle increase seasonally," the department said. "Some decline in prices of stocker and feeder cattle may also take place during the Summer."

Better Grades Low

The beef cattle situation so far this year, the department characterized as one of relatively low prices for the better grades of slaughter cattle, with a rather strong demand for stocks and feeder cattle.

Western cattle were reported as in good condition. Comparatively large supplies of well-finished, grass-fed cattle from California are in prospect during June and July, the department said.

The movement of Texas cattle to northern pastures is expected to be relatively small this year, but supplies of grass-fed cattle from Texas probably will be fairly large the department said.

During the first three months of this year packers paid $143,000,000 for cattle slaughtered under Federal inspection, a decrease of 11 per cent from last year. The price paid stockmen averaged $6.56 a hundred pounds, a decrease of 10 per cent.

Oven Canning No. 1

Every year more homemakers turn to home canning, not only because of the assurance of an abundant supply of wholesome canned foods, but because home canning makes the family budget go farther.

Right now, the markets are tempting us with their fruits and vegetables, and our gardens give promise of much bounty.

From the earliest luscious berries, rich red strawberries and raspberries, to the late autumn fruits, such as yellowing pears and apples, there is a procession of garden and orchard produce that we may can and treasure for those tried winter appetites.

There is no substitute for home canned foods. You know the quality is right because you personally select the food you can. There is no doubt about the better flavor. Just like home cooking, everybody enjoys the delicious taste of home canned foods. You get out of the jar just what you put into it. You know your home-canned food is appetizing because you control every step from the selection of the foods to be canned to the final sealing.

The oven method of canning is the easiest and quickest of all home-canning methods. Fruits and vegetables retain their shape, color and texture much better when sterilized by the oven method and the original flavor is preserved. It is necessary to spend only a short time preparing the products according to directions given.

Here are a few pointers to remember for oven canning:

1. Examine top of jars to see that there are no nicks, cracks, sharp edges, etc.
2. Wash jars in warm water, then boil for at least 15 minutes.
3. Select fresh, firm (not over-ripe) products—graded according to size and ripeness.
4. Prepare according to recipe.
5. Pack in sterilized jars.
6. Add liquid to within 1/2-inch from top. When using syrup, 1/2 inches from top of jar.
7. Wipe top of jar free from all seeds, pulp, etc.
8. Place sterilized lid on jar and follow instructions that accompany that particular lid you are using.
9. Set jars on rack in oven which has been preheated at 300 degrees for 10 minutes, leaving space between jars for circulation of heat.
10. Process required length of time according to time-table. Figure time from moment last jar is placed in oven. In new, large capacity ovens we are able to can 12 qt. jars or 16 pt. jars at one time.
11. Remove jars from oven and set aside to cool in an upright position. The cooling should be as rapid as possible, avoiding drafts.
12. Store in a cool, dry and well ventilated place. If necessary to store in a light place, wrap jars in paper.
13. Never remove the top to fill jar if liquid has evaporated. This will allow air to reach the contents of the jar and may cause spoilage.
14. If liquid works out of can causing smoke in the oven, sprinkle salt on the juice.

Article Number 2 on Oven Canning will appear next week.

STUDENTS WORK, KEEP UP GRADES

AMES, Ia. July 8 —(UP)—Students forced to take part-time jobs to finance their college education are not handicapped in their studies, according to a survey of 545 freshmen at Iowa State College.

The survey, made by Dwane R. Collins, Mount Union, Ia., covered students with and without such jobs. Students were employed at everything from waiting on table to scrubbing floors.

However, Collins qualified his conclusion by asserting that a student could not expect to keep his grades up and work at the same time if his "ability rating" was below average.

"Provided that they have good health, sufficient mental ability to succeed in college and 'correct attitudes,' students who have to earn part of their college expenses need not worry about their grades," Collins said.

In some cases, grades of students actually improved during periods of part-time work, the survey disclosed. Collins attributed that in part to the fact that minimum grades are required to hold certain jobs.

In other cases, grades of students fell off sharply when they were employed, but this was the exception rather than the rule, Collins said.

Prof. J. A. Starrak of the vocational education department attributed the good scholastic showing made by employed students partly to the fact that they often are of better-than-average ability. He also said most students took the time required for their jobs from social affairs rather than study periods.

PHYSICISTS TRY TO FIND SECRET OF VIOLIN TUNE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP)—Science may debunk the violin. Harvard University physicists are engaged in research designed to "analyze the causes of beautiful tone production in the world's finest instruments and to discover why poor instruments fail and how they may be improved."

Dr. Frederick A. Saunders, research director, says that already a few inexpensive modern violins are found to give exactly the same tone quality as certain Stradivari instruments.

A $5 violin is used as the "standard of badness." Its tones are compared with those of the mellowest violins.

The "rawness" of many new violins, which disappears after being broken in, also is being studied in broken in, also is being studied in belief that perhaps the wooden plates are glued too tightly at first to vibrate freely and need time to loosen. Effects of moisture and varnish also are being studied.

As result of the studies, the physicists hope to learn how to build an inexpensive violin with a fine tone quality.

The other day, I went to a "high falutin'" debate held in a city school out here and I didn't understand a word they said and it just made me think, with pride, of the last debate I heard in the school down home.

The subject was "resolved that the horse is a more useful animal than the cow." After the horse side sat down, a tall, lanky boy got up and says "Honorable judges—we admit everything our opponent said in favor of the horse, but we claim that the cow does all that and more!"

The cow is a work animal as well as the horse. Moreover the cow gives milk with which to feed the children; the flesh of the cow is used for food; her horns are made into combs and such things. Then when the old cow lays down and dies, we can take her hide and stretch it over the ridge pole for a roof of your house and turn her tail up for a lightnin' rod."

The cow is a work animal as well as the horse. Moreover the cow gives milk with which to feed the children; the flesh of the cow is used for food; her horns are made into combs and such things. Then when the old cow lays down and dies, we can take her hide and stretch it over the ridge pole for a roof of your house and turn her tail up for a lightnin' rod."

CLEVELAND HAS CHANCE TO GAIN ON YANK TEAM

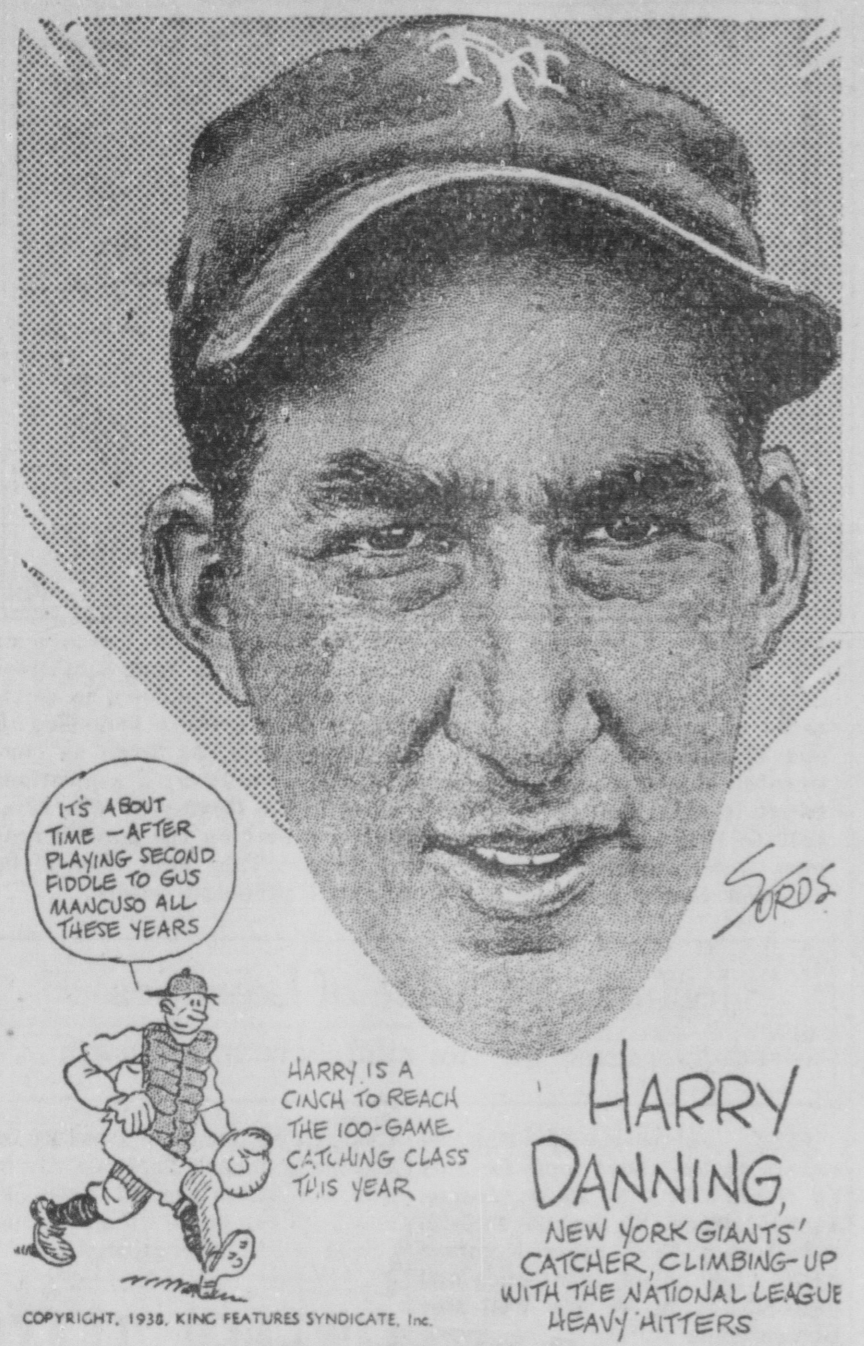

Indians Meet St. Louis As Boston Meets McCarthy Athletes

NEW YORK, July 8—(UP)—After a 3-day interlude for the All-Star game, baseball returned to its own private wars today. The New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians in a dog-eat-dog fight for first place in the American league and three clubs launching new drives to overhaul the league-leading New York Giants in the National league.

Cleveland's double defeat on July 4 by the Detroit Tigers was a stunning blow to the pennant hopes of the Indians. Coming as it did while the Yankees are in the midst of their greatest spurt of the season it emphasized once more Cleveland's failing of the past—inability to win when the pressure is on.

In losing the doubleheader to Detroit, the Indians showed once again that their infield is leaky, especially at second base, and that their outfield, while one of the best offensive units in the league, still leaves much to be desired defensively. These weaknesses may prove fatal to the Indians in a ding-dong pennant race.

LONG KEY TOPS REDLEGS INVADE RACERS IN RICH CUB BAILIWICK RANDALL EVENT FOR THREE TILTS

CLEVELAND, July 8—(UP)—In 1927 when the harness world's blue ribbon event, the Hambletonian, was raced at Lexington, Ky., the rich stake was won by the Ohio-owned Isola's Worthy, which carried the colors of E. J. Merkle of Columbus.

Eleven years later Merkle has another top-ranked Hambletonian candidate and it is the son of his first classic winner.

Purely because of sentiment Merkle bought Long Key at the famed Old Glory auctions for $3,600. The bay colt by Peter Volo out of Isola's Worthy failed to impress as a two-year-old and did not finish in the money last season. However, yesterday at the North Randall track it justified Merkle's faith by finishing in front in the rich Championship Stallion Stake that carried a purse of $6,185.

Long Key was second to Champlain in the first heat, but then the veteran Ben White drove the Merkle colt home first in the last two heats.

Champlain finished second in the race and the highly touted Earl's Mr. Will was third.

Other winners on the Grand Circuit program yesterday were: Gene Talmadge in a 2:22 class pace; King Vagabond in a 2:15 class trot; Margaret Henley in a handicap claiming pace; and Lilly Mac in a 2:20 class trot.

St. Paul shaved the league lead of the Indianapolis Indians to 1½ games by downing the charges of Ray Schalk 7 to 6 in 10 innings. The Saints scored twice in the ninth to knot the count and pushed across the winning run on successive singles by Malin McCulloch, Leroy Anton and Kenny Silvestri.

ESHELMAN TEAM TO FACE GAINS IN LEAGUE TILT

Feeds Must Win To Retain Tie; Managers Called For Meeting

Eshelman Feeds, alone at the top of the softball loop until this week when they were bumped by the Fenton Cleaners, face a difficult task this evening when they take on the speedy Cain food market outfit. The Feeds must win to retain their tie with the Fentons who take on the strengthened Glitt food market outfit next week.

The Eshelman hurler will be either Lloyd Leasure or Carl Purcell while Erville Thomas will have them for the South Bloomfield lads.

League managers are to meet in The Daily Herald office at the conclusion of the game to map plans for the second half of the race.

The Glitt food market outfit recovered from the doldrums Thursday to force the Purina Feeds in a 3-2 game. The Feeds outlasted the Glitts after scoring three runs in the first frame on singles by Warner and Cook and Arch Ward's home run blow. The Feeds were never troubled after that initial fray.

The Glitt boys scored two markers in the third frame after two were out on third strikes. I Smith singled and Barnes, H. Smith and Weller followed with bases on balls. A fielder's choice permitted the second run to score.

The fray was well-played with Buskirk and Ben Davis doing the hurling.

REDLEGS INVADE CUB BAILIWICK FOR THREE TILTS

CHICAGO, July 8—(UP)—The youthful Cincinnati Reds who blazed a brilliant trail through National League ranks on a recent trip East and then suddenly cooled off when back on their home grounds, came here today to open an important engagement with the third place Chicago Cubs.

The Reds have lost their last six engagements, a performance that caused them to drop from second to fourth place in the standing. Two of the defeats were at the hands of the talented, but sometimes lethargic, Cubs.

Cincinnati has three games scheduled here and then two at St. Louis with the Cardinals before it moves back home to make a stand against the eastern clubs.

What Cincinnati pennant fortunes are may be determined during the series with the Cubs and Cardinals. Thus far the Redlegs have made a dismal showing against clubs in their own western half of the league.

To date Cincinnati has played 26 contests with Chicago, St. Louis and Pittsburgh. They can show only nine victories as against 17 defeats for those games, a percentage of .346. Against eastern rivals they have gone at a much faster pace, winning 26 games and losing 14 for a percentage of .650.

The schedule calls for the Reds to face western rivals more frequently than eastern foes during the remainder of the season. And they must make an improved showing if they hope to remain in the flag fight.

Paul Derringer, big right-hander, and Tex Carleton were to be the opposing hurlers today.

Upon arrival here General Manager Warren Giles announced the Reds had secured John Metoski, a rookie from the Columbia (S.C.) club of the Sally league to understudy Lew Riggs at third base. Metoski is a graduate of Fordham and, playing his first season of professional baseball.

INITIAL FIGHT CARD MATCHES SPEEDY YOUTHS

Warren Lutz To Tangle With Patrick; Denny, Hulse Booked

Complete card for the amateur boxing show to be presented in the Circleville Athletic club Saturday at 8:15 p. m. was announced, Friday.

Warren Lutz, S. Scioto street, will meet Homer Patrick, Walnut township, in one of the main events. Both boys weigh about 145 pounds.

The second main go will bring together Shirley Hulse of Jackson township and Bob Denny, Circleville. Hulse is the 1937 and 1938 high school featherweight champion. Denny was winner of the welterweight championship in the 1937 county tournament. Both boys are now in the welterweight division.

Other matches, listed as preliminaries include Ned Thacher, Jackson township, and Edgar Stevens, Circleville. Thacher weighs 153 pounds and Stevens, 155.

Bob Hill and Paul Jackson, Negroes will open the show. Both are in the lightweight class.

The Saturday night show is the first of the weekly bouts to be held during the Summer, sponsored by the Twentieth Century Sportsman's club. All bouts will be three rounds. Ralph Wallace will be referee.

GIVEN WINS TOURNEY

H. B. Given won a twilight tournament at the Country Club Thursday evening by golfing a 47 on nine holes with 15 handicap taken off to give him a net 32. Second place went to Tom Brunner with 15 putts and third to N. E. Reichelderfer, high net with 49-6, 43.

INDIANS TANGLE WITH BROWNIES; ROOKIE BOOSTED

CLEVELAND, July 8—(UP)—Hopeful of making a clean sweep of their three game series with the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns so as to go east next week still at the front the American league pennant parade, the Cleveland Indians were to depend on either Mel Harder or Earl Withehill to give them victory in the series opener here today.

Manager Oscar Vitt expressed the belief that the three-day holiday occasioned by the All-Star game had helped his club and was confident the Tribe would snap out of the batting slump that gripped it in recent engagements with Chicago and Detroit.

After riding the bench for one day because of loose defensive play, Sammy Hale was slated to return to second base in the series with the Browns.

As the Indians returned to action the Cleveland management announced that Rookie Pitcher Johnny Humphries had been given a new contract calling for an increased salary for the present season and also signed for the 1939 campaign.

CLEVELAND HAS CHANCE TO GAIN ON YANK TEAM

Indians Meet St. Louis As Boston Meets McCarthy Athletes

NEW YORK, July 8—(UP)—After a 3-day interlude for the All-Star game, baseball returned to its own private wars today the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians in a dog-eat-dog fight for first place in the American league and three clubs launching new drives to overhaul the league-leading New York Giants in the National league.

Cleveland's double defeat on July 4 by the Detroit Tigers was a stunning blow to the pennant hopes of the Indians. Coming as it did while the Yankees are in the midst of their greatest spurt of the season it emphasized once more Cleveland's failing of the past—inability to win when the pressure is on.

In losing the doubleheader to Detroit, the Indians showed once again that their infield is leaky, especially at second base, and that their outfield, while one of the best offensive units in the league, still leaves much to be desired defensively. These weaknesses may prove fatal to the Indians in a ding-dong pennant race.

Pitching Factor

Pitching has been one of the big factors in keeping the Indians at the head of the American league parade, but in the Independence Day double defeat Cleveland's pitching went sour. Bob Feller, No. 2 man on the staff to Johnny Allen, proved that he hasn't yet mastered his control. He was wild and unstable. To stay in the pennant the Indians have to have Allen and Feller pitching at their best.

By the luck of the schedule Cleveland gets a great chance to recover from its nose dive against the lowly St. Louis Browns while the Yanks have to battle the tough Boston Red Sox, who are still very much in the pennant race themselves.

The Yanks, in their drive to the top, have been combining good pitching and hitting and once more look like the great team of other years. If their pitching holds up they must be regarded as favorites to retain their title.

Despite the fact that the Giants have pulled away to a 3½ game lead in the National league, the race is far from over. Pittsburgh is all even with the Giants in the lost column, 25 each. Only the difference in the number of games played, all of which the Giants have won, is responsible for New York being on top.

The Chicago Cubs, although six games off the pace in third place, must not be counted out. Even Bill Terry says, "The Cubs will be back up there. I consider them our most dangerous rivals."

Cincinnati, which hit a slump after one of its most successful eastern road trips in a decade, is likely to come back strong. Manager Bill McKechnie feels that the loss of Shortstop Billy Myers, who had an injured leg, was largely responsible for the Reds' slump. With Myers back in the game he believes the Reds will right themselves and start to climb again.

WYATT NEARING NEW MARK FOR THREE STRIKES

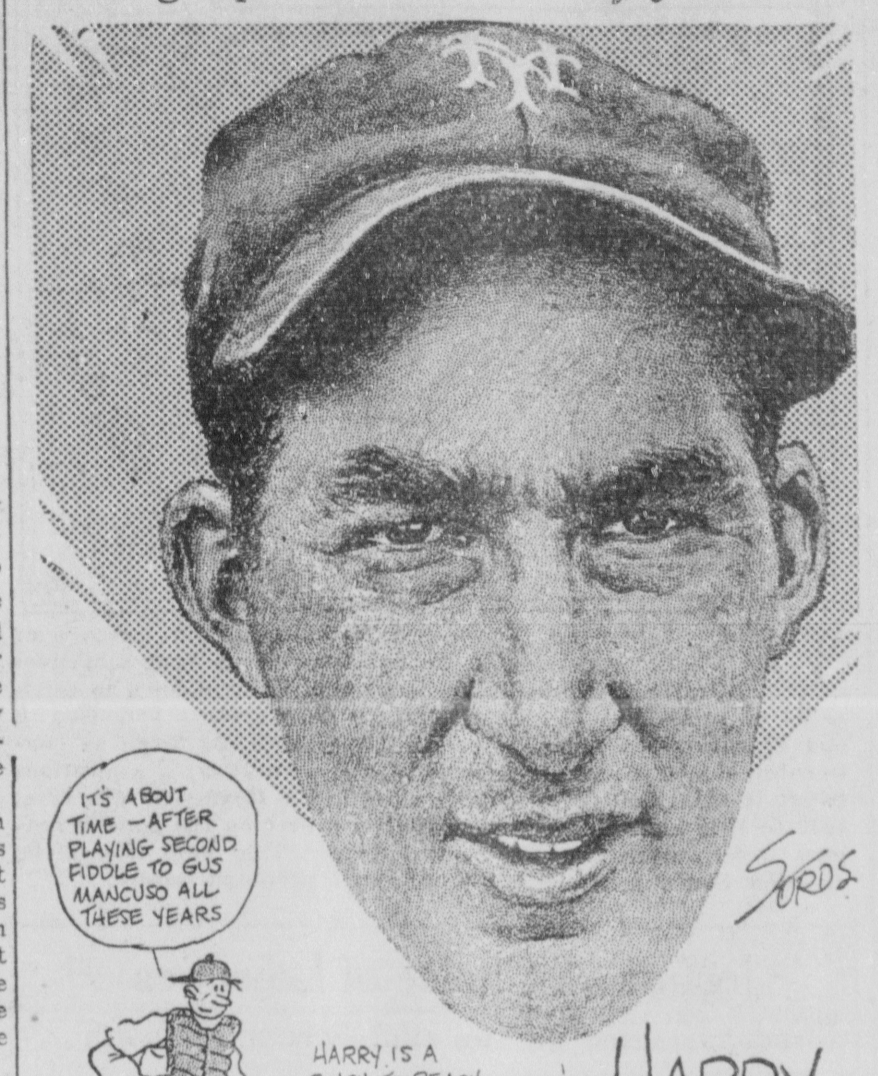

COLUMBUS, July 8—(UP)—Only four times in the last 20 years has an American Association pitcher managed to strike out 200 or more men a season. However, the list likely will add the name of Whitlow Wyatt of Milwaukee this year.

Wyatt set 13 of the Columbus Red Birds down on strikes last night as he hurled Milwaukee to an easy 9 to 2 victory. By virtue of his accomplishment Wyatt brought his season's total to 112 strikeouts for the 146 innings which he has worked.

The Brewers fast ball ace, who was shunted back to the minors by the Cleveland Indians, has a record of 12 victories as against five losses for the season. He is credited with almost one-third of the victories the Milwaukee team has grabbed.

Steam Roller Joy Ride

WILMINGTON, Del. (UP)—Several small boys fulfilled a lifetime ambition when workers at a housing development left a steam roller with the "steam up." Their ride ended against an embankment at the end of a long field, but when a police radio car arrived at the scene the boys were gone.

INITIAL FIGHT CARD MATCHES SPEEDY YOUTHS

Warren Lutz To Tangle With Patrick; Denny, Hulse Booked

Complete card for the amateur boxing show to be presented in the Circleville Athletic club Saturday at 8:15 p. m. was announced, Friday.

Warren Lutz, S. Scioto street, will meet Homer Patrick, Walnut township, in one of the main events. Both boys weigh about 145 pounds.

The second main go will bring together Shirley Hulse of Jackson township and Bob Denny, Circleville. Hulse is the 1937 and 1938 high school featherweight champion. Denny was winner of the welterweight championship in the 1937 county tournament. Both boys are now in the welterweight division.

Other matches, listed as preliminaries include Ned Thacher, Jackson township, and Edgar Stevens, Circleville. Thacher weighs 153 pounds and Stevens, 155.

Bob Hill and Paul Jackson, Negroes will open the show. Both are in the lightweight class.

The Saturday night show is the first of the weekly bouts to be held during the Summer, sponsored by the Twentieth Century Sportsman's club. All bouts will be three rounds. Ralph Wallace will be referee.

GIVEN WINS TOURNEY

H. B. Given won a twilight tournament at the Country Club Thursday evening by golfing a 47 on nine holes with 15 handicap taken off to give him a net 32. Second place went to Tom Bruner with 15 putts and third to N. E. Reichelderfer, high net with 49-6, 43.

HOPS AHEAD OF BEER

SACRAMENTO, Cal. (UP)—Despite America's great consumption of beer, it is unable to keep up with California's production of hops. Eighty-five thousand bales of old hops have just been diverted from the beer manufacturing vats to the fertilizer factories.

The coffee bean is red and resembles a cherry until roasted.

INDIANS TANGLE WITH BROWNIES; ROOKIE BOOSTED

CLEVELAND, July 8—(UP)—Hopeful of making a clean sweep of their three game series with the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns so as to go east next week still at the front the American league pennant parade, the Cleveland Indians were to depend on either Mel Harder or Earl Witehill to give them victory in the series opener here today.

Manager Oscar Vitt expressed the belief that the three-day holiday occasioned by the All-Star game had helped his club and was confident the Tribe would snap out of the batting slump that gripped it in recent engagements with Chicago and Detroit.

After riding the bench for one day because of loose defensive play, Sammy Hale was slated to return to second base in the series with the Browns.

As the Indians returned to action the Cleveland management announced that Rookie Pitcher Johnny Humphries had been given a new contract calling for an increased salary for the present season and also signed for the 1939 campaign.

War Scare Over Chaco Border

WAR threat between Bolivia and Paraguay again hangs over the Chaco wilderness in South America as representatives of six neutral countries struggle to prevent a breakdown in territorial negotiations. The neutrals try to fix a definite boundary to end a century-old dispute over the Chaco area, as large as continental but of doubtful economic value. Paraguay's aspirations to retain nearly all the territory gained in the three-year war from 1932 to 1935 and refusal to yield Bolivia a port on the upper Paraguay river deadlocked the conversations. This map shows the disputed Chaco territory and Paraguay's proposed border.

Joshua—A Choice of Loyalties

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July is Numbers 13:26-33; Joshua 14:6-15, especially Joshua 14:6-15, the Golden Text being Numbers 13:30, "Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

"The NEXT step in human progress is always an invasion of the territory of the impossible."

Ten of the princes of the tribes of Israel, sent ahead to spy out the land of Canaan, brought back a very disheartening report about the promised land. "We are not able," they moaned, "to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we."

The Grasshopper Complex. "And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had spied out unto the children of Israel . . . and all the people we saw in it are men of great stature . . . and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so were we in their sight." When we admit that we are whipped we are whipped indeed! But Caleb and Joshua had no such idea of defeatism. They had the courage to bring in a minority report. The grasshopper complex that made the majority say "We are not able," they answered with a stout and emphatic "We are well able."

And Caleb stilled the people before Moses and said, Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it." Thank God for courageous minorities! They saw all the difficulties of giants and walled cities that terrified the majority, but they saw them not in comparison with their own weakness, but in comparison with the omnipotence of Jehovah, their God. Their faith begat courage in their hearts to attempt what the majority regarded as impossible. But the policy of fear prevailed and infected the whole nation and stopped the clock of progress for 38 years. It is not difficult for us to believe this story for we have been living through nine years of depression dragged out by lack of confidence born of fear of giants in the way. Recovery will come only when we recover our faith and our willingness to accept the partnership of God and venture with him.

No "Deadline" Caleb's courage as a spy at 40 years of age, inspiring as it was, is exceeded by his courage at 85, when the tribes were settled in the land and, Caleb the aged, asks Joshua to assign to him as his inheritance the giant infested hill country of Hebron, the most forbidding portion of the promised land. He did not take the position that the nation owed him a pension or a living. He still had plenty of fight left in him. He recognized no "deadline" by reason of age: "Lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old. As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me; as my strength was then, even so is my strength now. . . . Now therefore give me this hill-country whereof Jehovah spake in that day. . . . It may be that Jehovah will be with me and I shall drive them out, as Jehovah spake." Caleb specialized in what others called the impossible. Others used two words, "not able."

British critics of the Chamberlain government seem to regard its international attitude not so much a foreign as a foreigners' policy.

At Harvard they've perfected a mechanism which exerts a pressure of 750,000 pounds to a square inch. This would interest Max Baer, who says he really wishes to fight Joe Louis.

Caleb put those two into one and made himself "notable." Is not this the lesson we all need just now? "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

ECKENER FLAYS INTERIOR CHIEF

German Scores Ickes For Refusing To Approve Sale Of Helium

FRIEDRICH SHAFEN, Germany, July 8—(UP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, Zeppelin chief, criticized Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes today for refusing to release helium gas for Zeppelin airships, and called his refusal an election maneuver. Eckener expressed confidence that Germany would obtain helium from the United States in the end and asserted that President Roosevelt personally had told him that the situation was not yet closed. Eckener spoke at a celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin.

"The question of transforming airships for use of helium has been technically and economically solved," said Eckener. "The difficulties we are facing now are not technical but may I say, political. Helium is being withheld from us."

"The situation is somewhat curiously American . . . one minister suddenly expressed the opinion that helium, which had been promised to us already last year, was of military significance. It is something like a joke that the gentleman voicing this opinion is the minister of interior while the ministers of war and navy deny its military significance."

"The affair is not yet closed, as President Roosevelt personally told me."

British critics of the Chamberlain government seem to regard its international attitude not so much a foreign as a foreigners' policy.

At Harvard they've perfected a mechanism which exerts a pressure of 750,000 pounds to a square inch. This would interest Max Baer, who says he really wishes to fight Joe Louis.

ATLANTA BOARD PLANS ADDITION TO ITS SCHOOL

Voters May Decide Bond Issues For Structure; Population Gains

Perry township board of education has taken steps to place a bond issue before voters at the August primary for an auditorium-gymnasium addition to the Atlanta school under W. P. A.

Estimated cost of the addition is $65,000, with the district's share placed at $35,750. Definite plans for the addition have not been announced. In addition to the auditorium and gymnasium it will probably include some additional classrooms, a home economics room, kitchen and shower rooms. The present auditorium of the building is now used as a gymnasium. The ceiling is too low for satisfactory playing.

Reports in the county school office show 17 of the resettlement farms in the Perry district are now occupied and more are being occupied as work progresses. It has been estimated that the resettlement project will add between 50 to 60 pupils to the Atlanta school next year and more room will be needed.

You're Telling Me!

EUROPEAN diplomats, according to an overseas dispatch, are confused over present conditions. And who wouldn't be—after trying to talk sense to a gang of dictators?

A reader suggests a monument for Mussolini but wonders what sort would be most appropriate. The answer is simple—one made entirely of brass.

Clark Gable and Norma Shearer have been chosen to head the cast of the movie version of "Gone With the Wind," but neither can take away from us our long-time starring role of the one person who has not yet read the book.

The 1938 prize for supreme optimism must go to that benighted soul who suggested sending an invitation (rejected, of course) to Mussolini's Italian government to participate in an international conference to arrange emigration of political refugees.

War Scare Over Chaco Border

WAR threat between Bolivia and Paraguay again hangs over the Chaco wilderness in South America as representatives of six neutral countries struggle to prevent a breakdown in territorial negotiations. The neutrals try to fix a definite boundary to end a century-old dispute over the Chaco area, as large as continental but of doubtful economic value. Paraguay's aspirations to retain nearly all the territory gained in the three-year war from 1932 to 1935 and refusal to yield Bolivia a port on the upper Paraguay river deadlocked the conversations. This map shows the disputed Chaco territory and Paraguay's proposed border.

Joshua—A Choice of Loyalties

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July is Numbers 13:26-33; Joshua 14:6-15, especially Joshua 14:6-15, the Golden Text being Numbers 13:30. "Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

"THE NEXT step in human progress is always an invasion of the territory of the impossible." Ten of the princes of the tribes of Israel, sent ahead to spy out the land of Canaan, brought back a very disheartening report about the promised land. "We are not able," they moaned, "to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we."

The Grasshopper Complex. "And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had spied out unto the children of Israel... and all the people we saw in it are men of great stature... and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so were we in their sight." When we admit that we are whipped we are whipped indeed! But Caleb and Joshua had no such idea of defeatism. They had the courage to bring in a minority report. The grasshopper complex that made the majority say "We are not able," they answered with a stout and emphatic "We are well able." And Caleb stilled the people before Moses and said, Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it." Thank God for courageous minorities! They saw all the difficulties of giants and walled cities that terrified the majority, but they saw them not in comparison with their own weakness, but in comparison with the omnipotence of Jehovah, their God. Their faith begot courage in their hearts to attempt what the majority regarded as impossible. But the policy of fear prevailed and infected the whole nation and stopped the clock of progress for 38 years. It is not difficult for us to believe this story for we have been living through nine years of depression dragged out by lack of confidence born of fear of giants in the way. Recovery will come only when we recover our faith and our willingness to accept the partnership of God and venture with him.

No "Deadline"

Caleb's courage as a spy at 40 years of age, inspiring as it was, is exceeded by his courage at 85, when the tribes were settled in the land and, Caleb the aged, asks Joshua to assign to him as his inheritance the giant infested hill country of Hebron, the most forbidding portion of the promised land. He did not take the position that the nation owed him a pension or a living. He still had plenty of fight left in him. He recognized no "deadline" by reason of age: "Lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old. As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me; as my strength was then, even so is my strength now... Now therefore give me this hill-country whereof Jehovah spake in that day... It may be that Jehovah will be with me and I shall drive them out, as Jehovah spake." Caleb specialized in what others called the impossible. Others used two words, "not able," Caleb put those two into one and made himself "notable." Is not this the lesson we all need just now? "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

ECKENER FLAYS INTERIOR CHIEF

German Scores Ickes For Refusing To Approve Sale Of Helium

FRIEDRICH SHAFEN, Germany, July 8—(UP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, Zeppelin chief, criticized Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes today for refusing to release helium gas for Zeppelin airships, and called his refusal an election maneuver.

Eckener expressed confidence that Germany would obtain helium from the United States in the end and asserted that President Roosevelt personally had told him that the situation was not yet closed. Eckener spoke at a celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin.

"The question of transforming airships for use of helium has been technically and economically solved," said Eckener.

"The difficulties we are facing now are not technical but may I say, political. Helium is being withheld from us.

"The situation is somewhat curiously American... one minister suddenly expressed the opinion that helium, which had been promised to us already last year, was of military significance. It is something like a joke that the gentleman voicing this opinion is the minister of interior while the ministers of war and navy deny its military significance.

"The affair is not yet closed, as President Roosevelt personally told me."

British critics of the Chamberlain government seem to regard its international attitude not so much a foreign as a foreigners' policy.

At Harvard they've perfected a mechanism which exerts a pressure of 750,000 pounds to a square inch. This would interest Max Baer, who says he really wishes to fight Joe Louis.

ATLANTA BOARD PLANS ADDITION TO ITS SCHOOL

Voters May Decide Bond Issues For Structure; Population Gains

Perry township board of education has taken steps to place a bond issue before voters at the August primary for an auditorium-gymnasium addition to the Atlanta school under W. P. A.

Estimated cost of the addition is $65,000, with the district's share placed at $35,750. Definite plans for the addition have not been announced. In addition to the auditorium and gymnasium it will probably include some additional classrooms, a home economics room, kitchen and shower rooms.

The present auditorium of the building is now used as a gymnasium. The ceiling is too low for satisfactory playing.

Reports in the county office show 17 of the resettlement farms in the Perry district are now occupied and more are being occupied as work progresses. It has been estimated that the resettlement project will add between 50 to 60 pupils to the Atlanta school next year and more room will be needed.

COUNTY COMMITTEE INFORMS FARMERS WHEAT LOANS WILL BE AVAILABLE

FEDERAL CROP REPORT OF JULY 10 IS AWAITED

John G. Boggs Lists Many Facts Concerning Way To Obtain Money

Letters were sent to Pickaway county farmers, notifying them that wheat loans will probably be available in the near future, Thursday by John G. Boggs, chairman of the county Agricultural Conservation committee.

"Nineteen hundred and thirty-eight is a year in which we are having an early wheat harvest and even though the wheat loan has not been officially announced by the Secretary of Agriculture, it is anticipated that wheat farmers who are participating under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation program to the extent that their total depleting acreage will be within 105 percent of their total depleting allotment, will be eligible for a wheat loan," the letter states.

"Unless the July 10 crop report is materially lower than previous reports, the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 makes it mandatory that these loans be made available to farmers.

Figures Available

"The act provides for loans for wheat when the crop estimate, together with carry over, exceeds 950,000,000 bushels and 1938 is a year in which this figure will be exceeded; therefore, even though not officially announced, we believe you should know that loans will probably be available in the near future.

"The outline given below gives some of the requirements for securing a loan:

1. The wheat on which the loan is made must have been produced in 1938.
2. Wheat stored in approved warehouse must be of No. 3 grade or better and can have not more than 14 percent moisture.
3. Wheat stored on the farm must have been stored in the granary at least 30 days prior to inspection for sealing and must be of grade No. 3 or better and shall contain not more than 13 percent moisture.
4. Farm bins and granaries shall be of substantial and permanent construction as to hold stored wheat without loss in quantity or quality; afford protection against thieves, rodents, other animals and weather, and permit effective fumigation for the destruction of insects. It must be securely and completely closed and sealed in such manner as to require a forceful breaking to make entry."

MARY A. FURNISS IS DEAD AT 70 IN DARBYVILLE

Mrs. Mary Alice Furniss, 77, wife of William Furniss, died of complications Thursday at her home in Darbyville.

Surviving are the husband, two sons, Sherman of Clarksburg and Francis of Mt. Sterling, and a daughter, Mrs. Bessie Hinton, Darbyville.

The funeral will be Sunday at 2 o'clock in the Darbyville M. E. church, the Rev. P. A. Harlan officiating. Burial will be in Darbyville cemetery.

Thirty years ago it took three pounds of coal to produce one kilowatt hour of electricity. Modern steam generators require one pound for similar production.

Expert Says There is No Best Dairy Cattle Breed

COLUMBUS, July 8—Last reports from Ohio's herd improvement associations are proofs that the best breed of dairy cattle is the one which the owner likes best because herds from all dairy breeds have the ability to produce profitably, according to Ivan McKellip, specialist in animal husbandry, Ohio State university.

In the association reports, Mr. McKellip finds herds of Holsteins, Jerseys, Guernseys and Ayrshires leading in different associations. The list of high individual cows also discloses excellent records from all four breeds. The specialist says that cows from any one of the breeds may stand in first place any month.

Mr. McKellip's opinion is that all breeds of purebred dairy cattle now carry within their bloodlines the inheritance factors of high production. He does not claim that all purebreds are equally productive but he does believe that differences between individuals of the same breed are as much more pronounced than differences between the breeds.

Records of Assistance

Herd improvement association records help the owner of purebreds in improving his herd as well as the owners of grades. Production in herds can be improved more rapidly when the owner of the herd knows the actual production of each cow so heifers from the best cows can be selected and kept for herd replacements. If other things are equal, progeny from high producing animals will be more profitable than stock from low producers.

Mr. McKellip says that poor feeding practices and poor herd management methods can nullify the ability of cows of any breed to produce at their maximum rate. Milk and butterfat are manufactured from feed nutrients, and sufficient amounts and kinds of the nutrients must be supplied or the assembly line in the cow's body goes into low gear.

The men who do the testing in herd improvement associations have had training in feeding practices and often can give advice that will improve herd production or will permit lower production costs. Another service given by the testers is the recommendation of improved practices for herd management.

Condition's Important

The University specialist says dairy cows register their opinions of management practices by the quantity of milk they put in the milk bucket. Drafts through the

Eagles Gather

E. F. Poss of Toledo, state vice president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, will be speaker at a district initiation to be held in the Circleville lodge Sunday at 2 p. m.

Approximately 200 members of the order from lodges of Columbus, West Side, Springfield, London, Washington C. H. and Greenfield are expected here for the initiation. Twenty-two candidates from the district are to be initiated.

For the first time in recent years the Circleville degree team will be in charge of the initiation.

barn in winter and excessive heat in the summer are recorded in the milk bucket. Lack of plenty of fresh water or insufficient amounts of salt cause drops in milk flow.

All breeds of dairy cattle respond in the same ways to favorable or adverse conditions, so Mr. McKellip advises dairymen to choose the breed of cattle they like best and then stick with that breed. Good feeding and herd management will be profitable with any kind of dairy cattle.

The Yellowbud Evangelical church will conduct its homecoming services, Sunday, the date also marking the reopening of the re-decorated church structure.

Sunday school services will be held at 11 o'clock followed by dinner under the trees. The afternoon service will be at 2 o'clock with the evening program starting at 8.

All persons who have ever attended the Yellowbud church are invited by the pastor, the Rev. S. S. Davis, to participate in the exercises.

More than $750 has been spent in remodeling the church.

The Rev. Mr. Davis also serves the Circleville Evangelical church which will have its Communion service Sunday at 10:30 a. m. with the Rev. R. A. Sain, district superintendent, preaching.

Ask the Man Who Uses Watkins Fly Spray!

He will tell you that Watkins Fly Spray costs less, because it goes further. You get more for your money as a result. It has always been known as clean, effective and economical.

Flies knocked down by Watkins Fly Spray stay down. Kill them and they won't bother your cows while you are milking. It's clean, odorless and will not taint milk nor gum up the hair of the cows.

I am taking orders now for summer delivery. Wait for my call and I will show you how to save money.

INDIA SONG OF HYMNS

"In the Secret of His Presence," the words of which were written by a high caste native girl of India who was converted to Christianity by English missionaries, will be featured on the "Hymns of All Churches" program Monday, July 11, at 1:45 p. m. over an NBC network. The music was written by George Cole Stebbins, long before he had met on a round-the-world trip the Indian girl whose words he had set to music.

Another of the hymns to be sung by the choir is "Come, Let Us Join Our Cheerful Songs," written by Isaac Watts, the man credited with being the first great writer of hymns in England.

The choir also will sing "My Cathedral," the words of which were written by Don McNeil and the music by Walter Blaufuss. This hymn first was introduced to radio by these two famous air personalities on the NBC Breakfast Club.

COUNTY COMMITTEE INFORMS FARMERS WHEAT LOANS WILL BE AVAILABLE

FEDERAL CROP REPORT OF JULY 10 IS AWAITED

John G. Boggs Lists Many Facts Concerning Way To Obtain Money

Letters were sent to Pickaway county farmers, notifying them that wheat loans will probably be available in the near future, Thursday by John G. Boggs, chairman of the county Agricultural Conservation committee.

"Nineteen hundred and thirty-eight is a year in which we are having an early wheat harvest and even though the wheat loan has not been officially announced by the Secretary of Agriculture, it is anticipated that wheat farmers who are participating under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation program to the extent that their total depleting acreage will be within 105 percent of their total depleting allotment, will be eligible for a wheat loan," the letter states.

"Unless the July 10 crop report is materially lower than previous reports, the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 makes it mandatory that these loans be made available to farmers.

Figures Available
The act provides for loans for wheat when the crop estimate, together with carry over, exceeds 950,000,000 bushels and 1938 is a year in which this figure will be exceeded; therefore, even though not officially announced, we believe you should know that loans will probably be available in the near future.

"The outline given below gives some of the requirements for securing a loan:

1. The wheat on which the loan is made must have been produced in 1938.

2. Wheat stored in approved warehouse must be of No. 3 grade or better and can have not more than 14 percent moisture.

3. Wheat stored on the farm must have been stored in the granary at least 30 days prior to inspection for sealing and must be of grade No. 3 or better and shall contain not more than 13 percent moisture.

4. Farm bins and granaries shall be of substantial and permanent construction as to hold stored wheat without loss in quantity or quality; afford protection against thieves, rodents, other animals and weather, and permit effective fumigation for the destruction of insects. It must be securely and completely closed and sealed in such manner as to require a forceful breaking to make entry."

MARY A. FURNISS IS DEAD AT 70 IN DARBYVILLE

Mrs. Mary Alice Furniss, 77, wife of William Furniss, died of complications Thursday at her home in Darbyville.

Surviving are the husband, two sons, Sherman of Clarksburg and Francis of Mt. Sterling, and a daughter, Mrs. Bessie Hinton, Darbyville.

The funeral will be Sunday at 2 o'clock in the Darbyville M. E. church, the Rev. P. A. Harlan officiating. Burial will be in Darbyville cemetery.

Expert Says There is No Best Dairy Cattle Breed

COLUMBUS, July 8—Last reports from Ohio's herd improvement associations are proofs that the best breed of dairy cattle is the one which the owner likes best because herds from all dairy breeds have the ability to produce profitably, according to Ivan McKellip, specialist in animal husbandry, Ohio State university.

In the association reports, Mr. McKellip finds herds of Holsteins, Jerseys, Guernseys and Ayrshires leading in different associations. The list of high individual cows also discloses excellent records from all four breeds. The specialist says that cows from any one of the breeds may stand in first place any month.

Mr. McKellip's opinion is that all breeds of purebred dairy cattle now carry within their bloodlines the inheritance factors of high production. He does not claim that all purebreds are equally productive but he does believe that differences between individuals of the same breed are as much more pronounced than differences between the breeds.

Records of Assistance
Herd improvement association records help the owner of purebreds in improving his herd as well as the owners of grades. Production in herds can be improved more rapidly when the owner of the herd knows the actual production of each cow so heifers from the best cows can be selected and kept for herd replacements. If other things are equal, progeny from high producing animals will be more profitable than stock from low producers.

Mr. McKellip says that poor feeding practices and poor herd management methods can nullify the ability of cows of any breed to produce at their maximum rate. Milk and butterfat are manufactured from feed nutrients, and sufficient amounts and kinds of the nutrients must be supplied or the assembly line in the cow's body goes into low gear.

The men who do the testing in herd improvement associations have had training in feeding practices and often can give advice that will improve herd production or will permit lower production costs. Another service given by the testers is the recommendation of improved practices for herd management.

Condition's Important
The University specialist says dairy cows register their opinions of management practices by the quantity of milk they put in the milk bucket. Drafts through the barn in winter and excessive heat in the summer are recorded in the milk bucket. Lack of plenty of fresh water or insufficient amounts of salt cause drops in milk flow.

All breeds of dairy cattle respond in the same ways to favorable or adverse conditions, so Mr. McKellip advises dairymen to choose the breed of cattle they like best and then stick with that breed. Good feeding and herd management will be profitable with any kind of dairy cattle.
